

2 New Labor Dispute Bills Halt Debate

N.O.P. Plan to Re- place Catlin Meas- ure Up in House

SENATE DELAY

Nelson Would Limit Scope to Creameries And Co-ops

Madison—(U)—A new Republican bill for state regulation of labor unions was introduced in the assembly today as the senate received a substitute on the controversial Catlin labor disputes bill.

The senate first voted to make the Catlin measure a special order of business for 7:30 tonight but cancelled these plans when Nelson's measure was introduced.

With voting strength closely divided, senators agreed nothing could be accomplished tonight since opponents of the original measure asked support to suspend the rule requiring substitutes to go over for two days.

The Catlin bill limits labor disputes to controversies between employers and a majority of their employees. It also outlaws "stranger" picketing and makes illegal the secondary picketing weapon by which unions have sought to organize non-union plants.

Assembly Proposal
Nelson's amendment would make apply only to creameries, canneries, and farm co-operative plants.

The new assembly proposal, sponsored by Schmitt (R) Germantown, requires unions to register with the secretary of state, their officers, business agents, organizers and employees, and to file each January list of all their members, together with dues, fees and extra assessments charged.

It also compels unions to file financial reports at the end of each calendar year and to publish the reports in newspapers.

Failure to make reports by the time required would be penalized by a $10 fine for each day of delinquency and any union official making false statements to the secretary of state would be subject to a fine of $500 to $1,000 and six months to a year in prison.

The Schmitt bill takes its place among other labor proposals, including the council of agriculture's employment peace act and the plan for licensing of organizers and business agents, all of which have been proposed by organized labor leaders.

Close Vote Seen
Farthest advanced on the course toward final action is the Catlin measure which test roll calls have indicated may be killed or passed by a margin of one or two votes.

Senator Coakley, Beloit, Republican, leader, said that the bill be passed by a vote of 11 to 10.

Senator (D) Milwaukee, moved to delay action until next Tuesday, his motion lost 17 to 15.

The last time the senate held a light session was on the Wisconsin development authority repeal act, which produced a long but unsuccessful filibuster by Progressives.

Milwaukee Lawyer to Conduct Inquiry at Dodge County Asylum

Juneau, Wis.—(U)—Attorney Robert J. Steine of Milwaukee, named special prosecutor in a John Doe investigation of the Dodge County Asylum and Farm, said today he would confer with officials early next week.

He was appointed by Circuit Judge C. M. Davidson yesterday to inquire into charges of irregularities in administration of the asylum and farm.

Steine said he also would investigate the recent death of a resident of the farm who was scheduled to be a witness in the inquiry. "Unquestionably the body will be examined," Steine added.

Superintendent Vincent Klisk dehaire at the county institutions. He expressed hope the inquiry "is prompted by good motives and for the good of the people and the taxpayers."

Tax Revision to Help Business Is Up to Roosevelt

Proponents Say Action This Session Depends On President

Washington—(U)—Congressional advocates of tax revision as a business stimulant contended today that chances for action this session depend on the attitude of President Roosevelt.

Some administration leaders elsewhere said they expected no word from the president, but that they might give tacit approval if house and senate committees proposed changes.

Mr. Roosevelt sent to Chairman Harrison (D-Miss.) of the senate finance committee yesterday preliminary treasury tax studies, which contained no recommendations, but said that taxes criticized by business could be eliminated if a flat 22 per cent tax were imposed on corporations with income in excess of $25,000. Such firms now pay 16 to 20 per cent.

Harrison said proportionately lower rates could be continued for small corporations now paying 12 to 16 per cent.

Levies Affected
The taxes which would be eliminated by a higher income levy, he explained, were those on undistributed profits, excess profits and capital stock. He added that this would bring a revenue loss of about $234,000,000, which would be made up by the 22 per cent flat tax.

Harrison emphasized that the proposal was not his, and that he was interested only in "cooperating with the treasury to try to help the business situation."

Mr. Roosevelt has indicated, on the other hand, that the treasury is seeking to cooperate with congressional committees rather than to advance specific recommendations for overhauling the revenue system.

Secretary Morgenthau said today tax revision negotiations between the treasury and congressional leaders were proceeding "in an orderly way and according to schedule."

The secretary's statement, at a press conference, appeared designed to allay doubts about the administration's attitude toward tax revision.

$275,000 Pursuit Plane Wrecked as Pilot Makes Tests

Dayton, Ohio—(U)—His face singed, Pilot Frank Sinclair disclosed today fire broke out as he was flying at 15,000 feet in a new $275,000 pursuit ship, designed for the United States army. Sinclair said he fought the flames as the plane plummeted 10,000 feet toward earth, and then, seeing his efforts were futile, bailed out.

The plane, designed for possible purchase by the air corps, was demolished near Wright field yesterday. An informal inquiry was launched by the air corps.

Sinclair was making notes of the ship's performance when the craft started to fall. The pilot was burned about the head and arms and was suffering from shock after he "bailed out" in a parachute to safety.

Because of the ship's new design it was valued at $275,000 by the Seversky Aircraft company, the builders. The single engine pursuit ship reported to have a speed of 400 miles an hour, was one of several submitted to the air corps with advanced armament design.

Tammany Head Is Sentenced to Prison Term

Hines Must Serve 4 to 8 Years for Part in Lot- tery Conspiracy

MOTIONS DENIED

Judge Says Age of Pris- oner Causes Him to Be 'So Lenient'

New York—(U)—James J. Hines, 62, a power in Tammany politics for 25 years, was sentenced today to four to eight years imprisonment, on his conviction on lottery conspiracy charges in connection with the late Dutch Schultz's numbers racket.

Judge Charles C. Nott, Jr., suspended sentence of one to two years on the first count in the 13-count indictment, a misdemeanor charging conspiracy.

On each of the first four felony counts, Judge Nott sentenced the Tammany district leader to not less than one year nor more than two years, the sentences to run consecutively.

On the last eight felony counts, Hines received one to two years to run concurrently with the previous felony count sentences.

"If it were not for your age," said Judge Nott, in passing sentence, "I would not be so lenient with you. The evidence showed you were paid at least $30,000 annually to protect this vicious racket and in all previous cases of this type that have come before me, I have been much more stringent."

Hines was pale and nervous as sentence was passed. He adjusted and readjusted his glasses. His lawyer, Lloyd Paul Stryker, blanched too as Judge Nott announced the sentence.

Stryker made two routine motions to dismiss. Both were denied. He told the court Hines had cooperated with probation officers to the fullest. Stryker said "Mr. Hines has nothing to say."

J. Richard "Dixie" Davis, lawyer for the Dutch Schultz mob, and "Big Harry" Schoenhaus, ex-convict, named as fellow conspirators of Hines, were sentenced yesterday.

Davis was given a year, and Schoenhaus a suspended sentence with two years' probation. The testimony of these two men was largely responsible for Hines' conviction.

Defense Counsel Stryker said that Hines would appeal.

Under the court's ruling, Hines must go to the Tombs prison, but until the matter of his bond is settled—pending the appeal—he will not be obliged to go to state prison.

Judge Nott refused to continue the $20,000 bail under which Hines has been at liberty, but granted a stay of execution of sentence to enable Stryker to make an application for a certificate of reasonable doubt—the first step towards an appeal.

Assembly Changes Tenure Measure

Votes to Exempt One- Room Schools From Provisions of Law

Madison—(U)—The assembly today voted to exempt one-room schools from the tenure law enacted in 1937, guaranteeing the positions of all teachers having five years of service. The James bill repealing the entire law is pending in the house. It was revived yesterday after having once been defeated.

The assembly killed the James bill, supported by dry organizations, to permit whole counties to hold referenda on the sale of liquor, a privilege now extended only to cities, towns and villages.

It also killed the Balzer bill placing taxicabs under the public service commission and the Biemiller bill prohibiting night work in bakeries.

Advanced to third reading were measures fixing April 1 as the permanent deadline for automobile registrations, increasing the butterfat content of ice cream and appropriating $50,000 to bring the national American legion convention to Milwaukee in 1941.

The house also passed bills raising the 50 cent marriage license fee to $1; allowing trustees of county institutions to hold other county posts; and permitting counties to charge cities, towns and villages for part of the cost of old age assistance.

It adopted a resolution directing the assembly committee on expense and fees to investigate decreases in receipts from liquor, malt and gasoline taxes, despite a recommendation of rejection by the committee on expense and fees.

The Fitzsimons "working wives" bill, once killed and then revived, went through another stage when Nortman (R) Wausau, moved reconsideration of the vote by which it was engrossed. The motion will be acted upon next week.

Earth Shocks Near Rumanian Frontier Cause of War Scare

Budapest—(U)—Earth shocks in the region near the Rumanian frontier threw thousands of civilians and some of their soldiers massed on the borders into a shivering panic today.

The shocks continued intermittently for 40 minutes. The center was at Debreczen, where many troops are concentrated.

Several chimneys toppled, plaster fell from ceilings and pictures from walls.

Excited villagers, thinking war had begun with a nearby bombardment, leaped from their beds and ran into the streets seeking safe places. Some rushed into cellars.

Order was restored after a short time and reports from the region said the earthquake had caused but, slight damage.

Fireman Killed When Train Runs Into Land Slide

Mass of Dirt Blocks Track; Engine, 2 Bag- gage Cars Derailed

Oscoda, Wis.—(U)—Frank Dietl, 45, Minneapolis, a fireman, was killed and Engineer Walter Robinson, Minneapolis, was seriously injured late yesterday when a land slide forced the engine and two baggage cars of the Soo Line passenger Train No. 61 off the tracks three miles south of here.

Railway officials said no passengers were hurt.

The slide blocked the track about three-fourths of a mile east of the St. Croix river drawbridge. Soo Line officials said, vision of the engine crew was obscured by a curve and they were unable to stop the train in time to avoid hitting the mass of mud and dirt loosed by the spring thaw.

Passengers Delayed
Approximately 30 passengers bound for Duluth, Minn., on the train which left Minneapolis at 1:53 p. m. continued their journey on Train No. 63, which was bound for Minneapolis but was halted by the wreck and went back to Duluth.

Passengers on Train No. 63 continued their trip to Minneapolis in automobiles.

The body of Dietl was not removed from the car of the engine until after 8 p. m. The condition of Robinson, who was removed to a hospital here, was reported as fair. He suffered severe burns.

Non-Partisan Election Measure Is Defeated

Madison—(U)—The senate on a tie today killed a joint resolution providing for non-partisan election of county officers through adoption of a constitutional amendment.

With party lines split, the senate by a vote refused to engross the resolution by Brown, Chicago, Kenosha, River Falls, and Sheboygan. After a successful vote to reconsider 16 to 13, the resolution failed again 16 to 16.

The senate also passed two bills allowing a court to revoke beer and hard liquor licenses upon one conviction for a misdemeanor. Under the bills by Gettelman (R) Milwaukee, and Busby (P), West Allis, cities, towns, or villages also could revoke these licenses. Conviction for a felony would result in automatic revocation.

Waterways Needed for Defense—Roosevelt

Washington—(U)—President Roosevelt told the National Rivers and Harbors congress today that proper development of waterways was "essential to the safety and defense of the nation."

Former Representative W. J. Driever of Arkansas, president of the congress, read the written message from the president at the luncheon meeting of the organization in which the president credited to the rivers and harbors congress "in no small measure" the "great strides we have made during the past six years in the effective development of our waterways and the solution of flood control problems."

Trapped Rancher Kills 2 Men After Telling His Pursuers to Have 'Head Mounted, Hung Up'

Cody, Wyo.—(U)—A heavy trench mortar, dynamite and gas bombs were rushed by airplane into northern Wyoming today in an attempt to blast Earl Durand, 56-year-old "Tarzan," from a rocky fortress where he held more than 100 men at bay all night after shooting down two policemen who attempted to rush his hideout.

Cody, Wyo.—(U)—A shaggy-maned renegade rancher who challenged pursuers to "have my head mounted and hang it up" in the cowboy house, repelled with savage gunfire today the efforts of 100 policemen to reach his crown fortress.

Well-concealed in a clump of trees and boulders 400 feet up the side of Clarkfork canon, in northwestern Wyoming, Earl Durand, 56, shot down the only two men who dared to climb the slope.

Each picked sharpshooters started on horseback at daybreak today on Sunlight valley, bent on reaching the crest of the 11,000-foot ridge.

750 Million Is Requested for Farm Benefits

Committee Refuses to Make 30 Per Cent Re- duction in Payments

RECOVERY IS AIM

Finds Action Necessary For 'Restoration of National Economy'

Washington—(U)—The house appropriations committee, rejecting President Roosevelt's request to cut farm benefit payments 30 per cent, asked congress today to appropriate $750,000,000 to promote agricultural recovery "essential to the complete restoration of our national economy."

The committee sent to the house floor a bill calling for a $1,067,274,427 appropriation for all agriculture department activities in the year beginning July 1. The total was $24,598,376 more than the president and the budget bureau asked and $113,109,148 more than regular appropriations last year.

The bill called for $500,000,000 for soil conservation payments under the administration's farm program—$15,000,000 more than the president's budget called for—and $250,000,000 for farm parity benefits which the budget did not recommend. Congress earmarked $212,000,000 in a relief bill last year for parity payments.

Claim Funds Needed
The committee, in its report on the bill, noted that the president had not requested any parity payments, but it said they should be made under the "clearly indicated policy" of the last congress.

Mr. Roosevelt has said that no appropriations above $485,000,000 should be made for the farm program unless congress at the same time legislates offsetting revenue.

The appropriation of congress last year of $212,000,000 for parity payments clearly indicated the legislative policy with respect to carrying out the new agricultural adjustment act, the committee said.

"The committee believes its duty is clear to provide in this bill the funds necessary for a continuation of that policy."

Although the committee carried forward the parity payment policy set forth in last year's recovery program, it made no provision for special loans, relief and rural rehabilitation. Congress voted $175,000,000 for the latter purpose last year.

The committee slashed $10,000,000 from the budget bureau's request for $201,000,000 for the bureau of public roads, saying the roads agency could get along with $40,000,000 for grade crossing elimination, rather than $50,000,000.

Measure to Abolish Federal Reserve Is Offered in Senate

Washington—(U)—Senatorrazier (R-N.D.) submitted a bill today to abolish the federal reserve banking system, create a Bank of the United States and print $7,000,000,000 in notes.

The $7,000,000,000 would be used as a revolving fund for the new bank.

Loans would be made by the bank to states and subdivisions for public improvements, preference being given where there was unemployment, or where wages were less than $1 an hour for 32 hours a week. Loans also would be made to banks and to the farm credit corporation, home owners loan corporation and other agencies where the money would be secured by bonds.

Begins Duties as Head Of Highway Commission

Madison—(U)—William E. O'Brien, of Kenosha, became chairman of the state highway commission today, replacing Thomas Davlin, Berlin.

O'Brien, a Democrat, was designated chairman by Governor Hagedorn, who reappointed him to the commission yesterday. Davlin will be vice chairman and Thomas J. Patterson, Durand, will continue as secretary. The latter are LaFollette appointees.

'No Other Power Shall Ever Subjugate Us,' He Says

Bratislava, Slovakia—(U)—The Slovak government reported tonight it had sent airplanes and Hlinka guards (Slovak storm troops) to eastern Slovakia to repel an Hungarian invasion of the plain lying between Kosice (Kassa) and Uzhorod (Ungvár).

Slovakia said the Hungarian objective apparently was to reach Michalovce, which lies about midway between Kosice and Uzhorod, commanding a plain which Hungary allegedly desires as a military defense measure.

Memel—(U)—Adolf Hitler concluded an eight-hour visit to this Baltic port, latest addition to his expanding realm, when he departed at 4 p. m. (9 a. m. C. S. T.) today aboard the torpedo-boat Leopard for an undisclosed destination.

Berlin—(U)—A treaty concluded today between Germany and Slovakia provides that Slovakia retains its status of an "autonomous sovereign state."

Germany establishes no formal protectorate over the region, as she did in the case of Bohemia and Moravia, but agrees to protect it in case of any attack from any side whatsoever.

Slovakia, whose secession from Czechoslovakia last week brought on the collapse of that war-torn republic, will have its own foreign minister and have diplomatic representatives abroad, according to the treaty.

Memel—(U)—Adolf Hitler today indicated that Germany's swift absorption of one stretch after another of European territory may have to come to a halt.

The Fuehrer gave this indication in an eight-minute speech to Memellanders after he had stepped Reorganization Is Near Final O.K.

Only Minor Difference Between House and Senate Bills

Washington—(U)—After a seesaw two-year battle, the Roosevelt administration added a broad government reorganization program today to its list of congressional victories.

Only adjustment of minor differences in the house and senate measures will be required before the legislation can be guided to the White House.

The president, nevertheless, did not get as complete authority for reshuffling federal agencies as he originally asked. In order to prevent a repetition of last year's house defeat, the bill was stripped of nearly every controversial feature.

As proposed by the senate yesterday 63 to 23, the legislation provides:

1. The president can reorganize, consolidate or abolish most administrative agencies by executive order. The orders would become effective after 60 days unless both house and senate voted disapproval.

2. Debate on proposals to disapprove presidential orders would be limited to 20 hours in each chamber.

3. If he ordered abolition of any agency, the president would have to arrange for the transfer of all its functions to some other agency.

4. The president can appoint six administrative assistants at salaries not to exceed $10,000 a year.

30 Egyptian Students Are Injured in Clash

Cairo—(U)—Thirty undergraduates were injured today in an outbreak among Egyptian university students over whether to study George Bernard Shaw's play "Saint Joan."

Students in the arts department had complained about studying the play, which they insisted contained passages insulting to Mohammed and Islam. Authorities argued that Shaw was not expressing his own opinions but those of the medieval Catholic church.

Would Cut State Aids To Smaller Schools

Madison—(U)—State aids for schools having less than 10 pupils would be reduced under a bill passed by the senate today.

Present aids amount to $250 for each teacher, but the bill, sponsored by the state department of public instruction, would make payments to small schools on a basis of $25 per pupil.

The senate also passed a bill legalizing the action of school districts in providing transportation for high school students.

SUGGESTS PLAN

Washington—(U)—Chairman Markham S. Eccles (above) of the federal reserve board suggested today that if congress believed balancing the budget would restore prosperity, it should act accordingly "without delay and without compromises for the benefit of any special groups."

"This would not be my program," Eccles told the senate's special silver committee, "but if, as would appear, it is the program of the majority, they should assume full responsibility for it."

London—(U)—Prime Minister Chamberlain told the house of commons today that Germany's recent diplomatic actions raised the question whether Germany "were perhaps planning to go even further" than to try to dominate Europe.

The prime minister added: "Were this interpretation of the intentions of the German government to prove correct, his majesty's government feel bound to say that as similar attempts have been made in the past this would cause the successful resistance of this and other countries who prize their freedom."

Chamberlain rejected a suggestion by Sir Alfred Beit, government supporter, that he propose to France, Belgium, Australia and the Union of South Africa that they incorporate the former German colonial possessions which they now hold under mandate from the League of Nations.

The prime minister's reply was: "No, sir, I do not think the suggestion would have the effect that my friend has in mind."

Sir Alfred argued that his proposal would be "an answer to German aggression in Europe."

Chamberlain said: "I wish to make it clear that there is no desire on the part of his majesty's government to stand in the way of any reasonable efforts on the part of Germany to expand her export trade."

"Nor is this government anxious to set up in Europe opposing blocs of countries with different ideas about the forms of their internal administration."

"We are solely concerned here with the proposition that we can not submit to a procedure under which independent states are subjected to such pressure under threat of force as to be obliged to yield up their independence, and we are resolved by all means in our power to oppose attempts, if they should be made, to put such a procedure into operation."

He referred here to Germany's triumphant recovery of Memel yesterday and last week's absorption of Czechoslovakia. Britain has charged that both coups were achieved by threat of war.

France Seeks Alliances
France is taking the lead in trying to get wavering Poland to join France, Britain and soviet Russia in a united front against Germany, political circles understood today.

It was said further that France, through her foreign minister, Georges Bonnet, who is here with President Albert Lebrun of France, wanted Britain to agree to Polish demands for an outright military alliance with Britain as the price of Polish membership in the anti-Hitler front. (Germany and Poland now have an anti-aggression pact.)

France was reported in political circles here (although Paris lacked confirmation) to have given great

'70 Known Victims' In Poisoning Plot

Salesman Convicted in Pennsylvania 'Insurance Murder'

Philadelphia—(U)—A death sentence verdict for a spaghetti salesman convicted of murder for insurance sent investigators on a manhunt today for "70 known victims" of a poison plot which authorities say was conceived at least 10 years ago.

Immediately after Herman Petzelle was found guilty last night of killing a WPA laborer with poison, detectives delved anew into trial evidence and promised wholesale exhumations and arrests.

The chief investigator, Detective Samuel S. Richards, announced he had information covering deaths 10 years back and would "start sweating out affidavits and exhuming bodies" today.

"There are 70 known victims of the poison plot so far," he said. "We will exhumate 70 bodies and issue 70 warrants. The bodies are all ready with the packs and shovels."

Petzelle, described by Richards as a "brilliant" was convicted only of the murder of Ferdinand Alfonso, 38. He was the first to go on trial of five persons accused of participation in a conspiracy to poison persons in Pennsylvania, New York and New Jersey. The findings of the jury of five men and seven women carried a mandatory sentence of death in the electric chair.

Contract Awarded for Gas Mask Production

Washington—(U)—The war department awarded today a $184,750 contract for a gas mask assembly plant and the production of an undisclosed number of masks to the Good-year Tire and Rubber company, Akron, Ohio.

Congress was told the army had insured client masks to equip even the regulars, disregarding the national guard. The $532,000,000 administration arms program includes funds to increase the equipment.

Italian Monarch Sounds Hopeful Note in Address

Says Government Has Notified France of Questions Dividing Nations

Rome.—King Vittorio Emanuele told the new streamlined legislature today that Italy had notified France of questions dividing them, giving some of his listeners the impression his government was awaiting French moves toward settlement.

His majesty, in a speech from the throne, also said Italy wanted peace to last "as long as possible" so she could develop her African empire but he declared it was necessary to continue re-arming "in the sky, on the land and on the sea."

Because the speech had the obvious approval of Premier Mussolini, diplomats considered it of hopeful significance.

French circles regarded it as leaving the door open to diplomatic negotiations for settlement of Italy's territorial claims against France.

"Aspirations" Unmentioned They found encouragement in the king's failure to mention Italy's "natural aspirations" for Tunisia, Djibouti, Corsica and Nice which stirred a clamor when Foreign Minister Ciano made such mention in the old chamber of deputies last Nov. 30.

Diplomats felt it was too early, however, to foresee any immediate French-Italian settlement.

"Regarding France," the king said, "my government has made known the questions which divide the two countries in this moment in an official note of last Dec. 17."

While the king was speaking Pope Pius XII again expressed his desire for "peace based on justice and mutual cooperation," a Vatican news service announced. This came in an audience for 700 Hungarian pilgrims.

Pope Receives Americans

The pope also received 10 young American priests with their relatives. His holiness spoke to them briefly in English and blessed them and their dioceses. The 10 were ordained last Sunday by Bishop Ralph L. Hayes, rector of the North American college.

Vittorio Emanuele acknowledged that events in eastern Europe had brought uneasy times.

He said Italy was aiming to "save peace for us and everywhere."

As for relations between the church and the fascist state "they continue to be inspired by the most cordial understanding and cooperation in the sphere of reciprocal attributions and responsibilities." He did not explain whether this meant that differences with the Vatican over racial restrictions on marriage had been eased.

3 Appleton Men Among 100 Eyeing High State Post

Fred Wettengel Is Most Recent Candidate for Insurance Commissioner

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

Madison.—A unique behind-the-scenes political battle in the state Republican party for one of the most attractive official jobs in the state capital was unfolded today in Heil administration circles when it became known that there are more than 100 candidates for the position of state insurance commissioner.

Moreover, it was reported on good authority that at least three of the most active candidates are prominent residents of the city of Appleton.

They are Elmer R. Honkamp, head of the Eighth district Republican organization, Orville G. Hegner, former district chairman and former Outagamie county party leader, and Fred Wettengel, veteran Outagamie county insurance man.

Most From Milwaukee Other candidates are principally from Milwaukee, but there are at least three seekers after the $5,000 a year place from Wausau, a couple from Portage, and seven from Madison. It was learned.

While the executive office has given no hint that it is even aware that the job will become vacant within a few months, the candidates since the Heil inaugural almost three months ago have put on lively campaigns through their friends in state Republican circles.

Further, the number of candidates for the job increases weekly. On one recent morning Governor Heil received four callers who revealed themselves as candidates for the job.

Most of the candidates are insurance men, but many are lawyers.

The term of the incumbent commissioner, Harry Mortensen, will expire June 1, and it is unlikely that the governor will announce his choice for the job before the end of May.

Commenting on the usual situation, one Capitol observer remarked yesterday: "If you see a man with a fishing pole, he's going fishing; if you see a man with a bulging brief case and a rate book in the capitol, he's a candidate for insurance commissioner."

1,000 See Home Show Opening; Exhibit Continues Over Weekend

Smart looking cupboards that will delight the housewives, modern heating units that give the most heat with the least labor, radios, washing machines, roofing—in fact, everything that goes to make home life more comfortable and happy is on display at the Better Housing and Home show which opened last night at Armory G.

Sponsored by the Knights of Pythias, the show will continue to night and tomorrow night, Saturday and Sunday afternoons and evenings. More than 1,000 persons from Appleton and vicinity attended the opening of the home show last night.

An Americanism theme marks the decorations which help make the armory into the most attractive setting in the history of the home shows. American flags and welcome signs in patriotic colors hang from the ceiling.

The Knights of Pythias hope to promote the building of more and better homes in the Appleton area by offering residents a timely and extensive look at the new materials and equipment.

This year's crowd is expected to set an attendance record for the show by exceeding the 5,000 mark.

Wilke Will View Two Suspects in Robbery

John Wilke, Weyauwega, who was attacked by two men in a daylight robbery at Weyauwega last Saturday, and Paul Jones, Wauwage county undersheriff, were to go to Green Bay this afternoon to view two suspects being held there.

Five men and a woman were arrested at Green Bay earlier this week on another charge and two of them answer the general description of the Weyauwega robbers, according to police.

Wilke was slashed across the forehead with a knife by one of the two robbers who escaped with $200 from the Weyauwega office and salesroom of the Wisconsin Michigan Power company.

Oppose Move to Abolish State Farm Authority

Author of Bill Is Only One to Support Proposed Legislation

Madison.—A bill abolishing the Wisconsin Agricultural authority drew considerable opposition and found support only from its author, Senator Taylor Brown (R.) Oshkosh at a hearing yesterday.

Brown conceded the W.A.A., created by the LaFollette administration in 1937 as a no profit corporation, with an appropriation of $100,000, to promote the interests of Wisconsin agriculture, had done some effective work but said the department of agriculture and markets could handle the job. He said the purpose of the repealer was "to consolidate state activities."

Wilbur Carlson, who resigned as W.A.A. director recently to become secretary for a canners' service bureau opposed the measure. Representatives of vegetable canners, cheese and milk producers and other farm groups also objected to it.

Carlson predicted the W.A.A. national cheese campaign would increase the market price 1 cent per pound through May, June and July and would raise the income of Wisconsin producers more than $1,000,000.

G. E. Wallace, a W.A.A. employee, said for every $1 spent by the W.A.A., $30 of traceable income had

Legion Oratory Contest Will be Held in Appleton

James Hensel to Represent High School in State Meet April 1

Appleton High school will be host to the state American Legion oratorical contest for Wisconsin Saturday, April 1. At present, according to H. H. Helble, state chairman of the American Legion and principal of the high school, 20 schools have submitted the names of contestants. Appleton will be represented by James Hensel, who will give his original oration, "The War for Peace." Hensel was selected by judges of the William B. Helss oratorical recital Monday evening.

Delivery of the orations will begin at 10 o'clock in the high school auditorium. Admission is free. Judges for the contest include Miss Kathryn Fralish, speech instructor; William Blum, history instructor; Edgar Hagene, history instructor; John Goodrich, history instructor; Werner Witte, vice principal of the high school; Helble; Ross Rowan, speech instructor at the Oshkosh High school; and representatives from Stevens Point and Wausau schools.

The winners of the first, second and third places in the state contest will receive engraved gold medals from the American Legion. The winner of first place will be Wisconsin's entrant in the regional contest April 7 at Vincennes Indiana. Contestants from Missouri, Kentucky, Indiana, Illinois and Wisconsin will participate. The national contest will be held April 14 at Springfield, Illinois. The winner of this tourney will receive the $1,000 college scholarship furnished by Eddie Cantor. Medals and other prizes also will be given to the student orators.

The contest is open to both boys and girls. The oration must be an original one and must not exceed 12 minutes in length. It is recommended that the subject be a patriotic one.

Pegler Doesn't Want to Get Too Clubby With Russian Reds

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER

New York—Politics and military necessity may compel France and Britain to fight on Russia's side and this country to help them, first with supplies and later perhaps with soldiers and naval power. But, whatever happens, the Russians and their American agents and sympathizers should not be permitted to get away with the current loud pretense that Russia is a democracy or any less hateful to this country than Nazi Germany. The only difference, as far as the United States is concerned, is that Germany and Italy are bulging with muscle just now and therefore are out marauding, whereas Russia, having more territory than she can efficiently use or well police, and being pretty well shot by internal conspiracies and dumb incompetence, can point to a recent record of half-hearted outward behavior toward the neighbors.

Hitler and, with him, Mussolini, have put themselves on the urgent list and will have to be attended to first, but Russia's record, as of the time when there was no German menace, was no more friendly than Nazi-fascism to the American form of government or the peace and security of this nation.

It might be remembered also that the Czechoslovak democracy, which Americans mourn with pure motives, and the same starry-eyed idealism that drew the United States into the World war, stood between the two kinds of bolshevism, red and brown, and wanted no more of the one than of the other. Russia liked the little republic only as a line of defense against Germany and forebore to destroy it by poison only because Czechoslovakia served to keep Hitler at a distance. Czechoslovakia was not a bolshevik nation, red or brown, and Russia's democratic feeling for her did not impel her to do anything rash.

No Excuse for Believing Russia Is a Democracy

In the event of a general brawl this democracy, having fought on the side of the czar in the last one, might overcome its objections to teaming up with the Russian bols, should it come to that. But there is no more excuse for believing that Soviet Russia is a democracy than there was for thinking that of czarist Russia. Nobody did think that of czarist Russia, but still the Americans fought on that side, handicapped to the extent of their ability, incidentally, by the very bols who now would call this nation comrade.

There is still something very mysterious and suspicious about the Russian-German equation, for they are almost identical in their own qualities, in their common enmity toward this country's freedom and form of government, and their hatred of religion. National rivalry is their only point of conflict and they easily could make a deal to exchange the things which Hitler wants for those which he is prepared to trade and Russia needs. And, as Demarcus Bess recently pointed out in the Saturday Evening Post, while the democratic nations have been striving generously to find asylums for the victims of Hitler's savagery, Russia, with much spare room and certainly with great need of the intelligence which the refugees have to offer, has extended no welcome to the outcasts. Certainly those in this country who have

"MEIN KAMPF"

Hitler's book, started when he was in prison for the abortive Munich putsch, and now translated into English without deletion, reveals the man as a highly temperamental character. Moods are trying on one's associates but they are devastating when they shape policies of state for great nations.

What Hitler says about himself, his likes and hates, his opinions of people and of states, comprise as acid a condemnation of his stability as could be written even by his most arch foe. And his hates stand out supreme as his moving spirit.

He hated Austria. It was a conglomeration of peoples. He hated the slums where he lived in Vienna. His hatred for the working classes of that great city, for their thoughts and expressions, their hopes and ambitions, he makes manifest in many lines.

He denounces dirt, filth, scum, corruption and impurity and he deals tenderly and lovingly with purity and cleanliness. His antipathy toward Czechs, Poles, Magyars and Jews is built upon their corruption of the pure German blood. But books differ from acts and many Slavs are now within the confines of the Reich even if the Jews are driven hence.

His praise of the good and denunciation of evil, or what he considers evil, is not unlike passages in political lectures we have heard here in Wisconsin except that where some of our local stump speakers are vague Hitler is generally definite. The good is German blood, all else is evil.

Books of this character prevailed during the Middle Ages but one would be forced to go several centuries further back in human history to find a precise parallel.

He reveals something of the bitter and avenging crusader warning of hell, damnation and destruction. He describes Germany as in process of disintegration because of the tainted bloods taken into its theretofore virile veins. In result, he says, there is lacking "that sure herd instinct which is rooted in unity of blood" and which alone saves a people in the face of an enemy "by the closed front of a uniform herd." There is nothing for the Germans to do but cleanse themselves of impurities and wipe out the individualism attendant upon blood mixtures and go back to "the uniform herd."

Hitler describes the methods employed by Socialists and Jews. The Socialists, he says, rise to political power upon lies spread far and wide. The Jews, he claims, rise to economic strength by the deft use of the lie. So he will learn from the Socialists and Jews, pluck their tricky weapons from their hands, multiply them a hundred fold, and crush them both with their own creation. This is fighting fire with fire.

He gives rapt attention to the clever and devilishly successful propaganda of the allied powers during the war. Here is another school for him. He will accept the very weapon they have forged successfully. Detestable though Socialists and Jews be, corrupt as were the allied powers, he will fuse their dark and dangerous into a rigid lance and, like an avenging angel, turn upon the creatures of hell and rout them.

There is something of Rasputin the Holy Devil in this man. Rasputin revealed in sin so that he might utter pious prayers to be saved. And the Russian monk was strong, persistent, confident, and brazen to the end.

How much of this book and the thoughts inscribed by its author were written for political advantage, that is for effect upon a people broken in spirit and seeking for a Moses to unite them, a reader can never say. Already Hitler has departed from its argument in substantial particulars. But it is as far away from the 20th century as Genghis Khan, and as civilized as the Orient which this mad leader drenched with blood.

No intelligent state could pay fealty to its doctrines but its tenet of a timeless, changeless, spiritless herd movement should instinctively receive the approval of Stalin and his inner council.

"ONLY WAY OUT"

The pallid and broken figure of a man lies on a cold slab at Waupun. The prisoner committed suicide. His name was Michael Kalamyer. He was a professional outlaw. In his way he had been quite successful. He had a gang and it roamed around the country but almost always in pursuance to planned burglaries that netted neat sums.

The gang craved variety. The mobsters were tired of Chicago and the Illinois scenery. Someone suggested Milwaukee. The name sounded good. Kalamyer said no, and recalled that Wisconsin had a tough name in criminal annals and foxy outlaws gave the state a wide berth. But the gang was a little high with liquor and bravado won the argument over caution.

The rest of the story is only 18 months old. The safe at the Luick Dairy was to be looted. An interrupting officer was shot. Swift and deadly police work rounded up the gang. Of the five original members one was killed in the fusillade with the officer. The remaining four received life sentences at Waupun.

After the prison gates closed upon these marauders the ice cold and clammy result of their blunder became inescapable. No hope here. Not even for a gangster with money. They had heard that report but doubted such a place could exist. Now they realized, too late, too late. No chance here to slip a few thousand dollars to a ward healer and have him talk reason to a parole or pardon board. No big shot, no Jimmy Hines, to pull the strings for a percentage of the next job. No chance either of corrupting court officers to change records to create error for review in the supreme court. And the suggestion of several other avenues employed by Illinois crooks must have brought from a Wisconsin lawyer a sad shake of the head with the information that sort of a road has never even been opened up in this state and the admonition that the mere suggestion of such quick habeas corpus ruses and the like would bring the whole state to its feet.

And so Kalamyer wrote his little note that he was accepting "the only way out," a perfectly honest and truthful note, and then hanged himself.

Death is a universal time for the fear of pity that may be dropped by all without the semblance of a jeer. But in the Chicago underworld there is no fear and there is no pity. The wolf has no feeling for a fellow wolf. When one gets into a trap the other devours him. And in Chicago the cunning figures that slink and shuffle in and out of the underworld are telling each other that Kalamyer was a sap for anyone with an ounce of sense would know better than to cross into Wisconsin.

OUR CONGRESSIONAL STARS

The 53 special newspaper correspondents at Washington made a careful appraisal of leaders in the Senate and House and marked them for their integrity, intelligence, industry and influence.

Senator Glass, anti-New Dealer, barely noses out Senator Norris, who has practically swallowed the New Deal in one gulp, in securing highest rating in integrity.

It is noteworthy that with a jury of critical, learned and experienced specialists, senators of radically different political viewpoint are not only rated just about evenly but each admired as an outstanding example of all those splendid qualities of mind, heart and soul that we gather together when we express the word integrity.

Senator Borah won first place for intelligence. Harrison of Mississippi got first for influence. And LaFollette of Wisconsin is given first place for industry, beating Wagner of New York in the opinion of the journalists, because of his constant and consistent attention to the details and duties of his office.

In the house Mr. Sumners of Texas was awarded the palm for integrity with Mapes of Michigan second. Wadsworth of New York got the prize for intelligence, Martin of Massachusetts won under the heading of industry and Rayburn of Texas obtained credit for the widest influence.

Others besides those mentioned above received worthy credits including Wheeler, Vandenberg, McNary and Byrnes in the senate, and Bankhead, Woodrum, Warren, Doughton and Bruce Barton in the House.

A vote of this sort should not be passed over with the quick attention that might be extended to a bathing beauty contest.

The citizen, instead, should gaze upon the names of these worthy, respected and enlightened leaders, be happy to acknowledge that the nation possesses their services, and reflect upon the unwise human tendency of comparing our lawmaking bodies to a few half-baked and fully cracked individuals that sometimes jimmie a window and get in.

Opinions of Others

It is one year since a $35-a-week clerk in Boston won first prize of $100,000 in a contest conducted by a cigarette company. Of this the government took $37,000 in taxes. It would be pleasant to be able to say that with the balance the young man bought pressing necessities and a few comforts of life, took a short holiday with his wife, and sailed the rest away to work for him from then on.

As a matter of fact he did just that, and it is what most of us would expect of the recipient. The management of money is an art, and when a quantity of it falls unexpectedly into the lap of a stranger to it, fantastic happenings are likely to ensue. Sometimes these have a "winning quality, as when the elderly Celt used a sweepstakes prize to set up drinks for every-

DALE HARRISON'S
In Old New York

New York—There have been dogger lunch-oon parties that, given to Mark Warnow by the CBS page boys, but never a heartier one; and though Warnow live an hundred years, he can never hope to be honored more earnestly.

The page boys—those trim, smartly uniformed young men whom the broadcasting company prize so highly for decorative purposes—had picked Warnow, CBS musical director, as their favorite artist. They decided to honor him with a luncheon.

"At the Stork Club," cried one, "The Colony," bubbled a second, "The Waldorf, the Ambassador, the—"

Up spoke Eddie O'Mara, their chairman. "Your ideas," he said, "are colossal. Your finances are vice versa."

So it happened that the Page Boys' luncheon honoring Mr. Mark Warnow was given at—the Automat.

The Automat is not a restaurant where at first blush you would think a very formal luncheon of this importance would be given. In the first place its rates are modest. In the second, the Automats are packed with people at lunch time—with people jostling about, balancing trays of food precariously and hunting for a vacant seat at a table.

To a page boy, however, nothing is impossible. A page boy at a broadcasting station is so remarkable, indeed, he can even remember the names of ALL the vice presidents.

They solved the problem of getting a banquet table by having two boys go to the Automat half an hour before the appointed hour and parking themselves at tables on one side of the mezzanine. By shrewd maneuvering, amazing adroitness, and sheer genius they managed to capture all the tables on that side by the time the other boys arrived with the Guest of Honor.

To the hurrying, worrying regular lunchers, the spectacle was a strange one. The boys, neat as soldiers in blue uniforms with wing collars and black bow ties, might have been generals from some fabulous Gustavus; they stood, spangly smart, behind their chairs and drank—in water from the Automat's communal spigot—a toast to their guest.

This formality accomplished, the lads marched downstairs to the glass-and-nickel fronted food showcases and got their lunches, like anyone else, by dropping coins in the slots.

With what probably was the first formal luncheon in history on its hand, the management of the Automat sprang forward to do its part. Cases filled with fresh flowers were placed on the table. The supreme sacrifice on the altar of hospitality was made when the management came forward with silver water pitchers which was a great help because it obviated the necessity of getting up and walking quite a piece for aquatic refreshment.

Mark Warnow will attend many more formal functions, and will hear more polyglottic praise; but he never will be honored more sincerely or more deeply from affectionate hearts than he was that day at the luncheon that came from the Automat's shiny slots.

The Dean of New York's Lost and Found experts is Miss Mary Ryan, now finishing her tenth year as head of the Hotel McAlpin's Lost and Found department.

Miss Ryan has found everything from lost toothbrushes to lost fortunes, but she is proudest of salvaging a broken romance. A young married couple had quarreled at the hotel and gone their respective ways in respective huffs. Miss Ryan had had left several articles. Miss Ryan notified each of them, but instead they called for the articles at a specified time. When they arrived, they fell into each other's arms—and went blithely away, happy in their newfound love, forgetting the lost articles they had come to claim.

More than 200 articles are lost each month, and about 180 get back to their owners. The most frequent loss is pajamas; the most embarrassing, false teeth.

"Kimberly, A Village With A Future," was the title of a booklet issued in the interest of the down-river town. Since the village was incorporated in 1910, the population had increased 60 per cent and there were not enough houses to meet the demand, the booklet pointed out.

A Versé for Today

THE BABY'S ROOM

This is the baby's room!
Step softly here:
No sudden noise, no gloom
Must spoil this atmosphere.

The walls reflect our joy
Clearly in pinks and blues...
Here is his first gay toy,
His painted shoes;

That knitted wardrobe holds
His infant stock;
The blankets' downy folds,
His dresses, every tiny sock.

His bassinet, all blue
And pink and lace,
Stands starched and very new
In its appointed place.

This is the baby's room,
Where angels gather from the holy hill,
For Heaven's glory bloom
Is on him still!

A Bystander
In Washington

BY PRESTON GROVER

Washington — At times we feel like defender of the faith and protector of the Senate, so insistent are we that this branch of the Government be safeguarded in its right sphere, but the battle for the time has been taken out of our hands and we are glad of it.

Sometimes it is just a little troublesome to defend the Senate, not to mention when the House is thrown in too.

But the job has fallen to Jim Preston of Washington.

He has been chosen to present the Senate properly before the country in the movies. For anyone in Washington to make a go of it in the movies is news in itself. It is true enough that Helen Hayes began her career here but she left early in life, long before the blight of politics had fallen upon her.

Jim came into the job this way. He once was superintendent of the Senate Press gallery—and may some day be again. More recently he has been keeping the national archives before the public eye. But all this went into the discard when Frank Capra, the producer, came to this town. He is dynamic. He met Jim Preston. Jim is not dynamic. He is factual. They merged.

Won't Overdo It

Capra wanted to produce a picture about Washington. He wanted to tell the story of a Brilliant Young Senator coming to town to make the world over. Somehow romance gets tangled up in it but that is for Capra to worry about. Capra was just a little fearful that in his effort to put romance in the Senate he might overdo the thing, get the atmosphere wrong, or slight an important tradition and make the film seem silly.

It is Jim's job to prevent that. He is Senate tradition incarnate. He is a slender, tallish fellow about 55 who looks so much like Prime Minister Chamberlain that he was used as the main course at a Grill-Banquet skit on Chamberlain. He looks that way without dressing up. It is a natural. He even wears the black homburg, although he doesn't carry the umbrella, yet.

Jim came to the Senate gallery the year before the Spanish American war. He stayed through the World War and the war against the depression. He has known every senator well since 1895. The country is full of amazing errors who were broken in to the Washington newspaper business by Jim Preston, as head of the press gallery.

Press Gallery Sacred!
To him the gallery is something sacred, like nothing else in the world. He will tell you that the only real difference between the United States and Germany is the existence here of an independent, functioning congress. And that the thing that takes the congress to the people, so they understand its importance, is the press gallery.

Jim isn't to be in the picture. He is a technical director. Capra has given him veto power over scenes that tell how Congress functions. They must look and smell right, or no go.

We don't know just how the Senate is going to appear, when it is toned up to fit the films. The country has been so long used to cartoon pictures of senators with high hats and white vests that the real thing may look like a fraud. There have been senators who look like that. There are some now. But Jim won't let the movies make them all look like that even if it spoils some of the romance. Jim knows that the Senate is made up of honest men, smart ones, good lawyers, back farmers, and a few squirted into public life from no place in particular.

It is just an average body of men, such as you might find any place but once dumped into the Senate they become a body of men like no other in the whole world.

Hollywood: There's a guy out in Denver who's suddenly took to walkin' backward. Claims he can't help himself, there's an urge inside that makes him do it. Physiologists, them fellers that figgers out all funny brain kinks, claim he's tryin' to back out of somethin' he's run into in life. Or maybe he's tryin' to walk back into the past where he had a better time. Anyhow, this guy is goin' in reverse at a great rate an' seems to be happy about it but the doctors won't let him alone. The people arn't supposed to get ahead by walkin' backward, an' they jes' won't allow it!

But, shucks! There's times when a step or two backward can do you a lot of good. My Uncle Toot was in a restaurant once that was bein' held up. A robber had a gun against his ribs an' said: "Git back in that corner there, you—an' fork over your money! Uncle Toot tried to oblige. He stepped back an' landed smack on the corner of a lady customer, who let out a shriek of agony that made the robber drop his gun an' beat it. That backward step saved my uncle a hundred an' two dollars an' kept anyone in the restaurant from bein' robbed. So they shouldn't be too hard on this poor guy. Maybe, if he keeps on, he'll really walk into somethin'!

That the idea has caught on among his assistants was apparent the other day when the governor's secretary, Col. William Maass, erected a huge sign in the sombre waiting room in the executive office on which are now emblazoned the virtues of Wisconsin's cheese and lakes. Big as life, it attracts the attention of all who enter the governor's sanctum, and they are many.

THE IRRESISTIBLE FORCE AND THE IMMOVABLE OBJECTS

Under the
CAPITOL DOME

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

Madison — The Heil administration now in control at the state capitol has been widely heralded as a business administration. That is also the boast of the Heil administration itself. Therefore the legislative demands of Wisconsin business, as represented in the inclusive Wisconsin State Chamber of Commerce, should have more than passing interest this winter. The foremost spokesman for Wisconsin business should be expected to make progress in a business administration.

Following are some of the Chamber's most significant legislative proposals.

"Such additional general taxes as may be necessary to balance the budget as quickly as reasonable. Discourage specific taxes which tend to hamper business and make business operations unattractive in Wisconsin.

"Amend income tax law to make income tax returns of all kinds confidential.

"Study in detail the entire act governing unemployment compensation for possible beneficial changes, keeping in mind retaining the benefits of the individual employer account and merit rating system for Wisconsin.

COOPERATIVES
The Chamber also wants support for the Council of Agriculture's labor relations act, the White-Carlin "stranger picketing" ban, and a repeal of the Wisconsin anti-injunction statute.

It wants a "survey and elimination of inefficiency and superstructure in state and local government."

"Survey the possibility of a revision of civil service, with a view to reducing governmental expenditures by adjusting the present maximum and minimum scale of civil service compensation."

It is also opposed to state "favoritism to any group or class," with particular regard to the present paternalistic laws favoring cooperatives.

"Cooperative business enterprise in Wisconsin should be placed on the same basis as private enterprise, with which it competes."

And it recommends:
"Repeal of the law requiring the teaching of cooperative principles in the public schools of Wisconsin."

"Cooperatives to pay taxes on the same basis as private business."

"All state departments to cease immediately any program of special assistance to cooperatives."

SELLING WISCONSIN
If there is any one idea which marks the Heil government in the capitol as different from its predecessors, it is salesmanship. The governor prides himself on his efforts to "sell" Wisconsin on his out-of-state trips. Wisconsin cheese, industrial products, and recreational possibilities, figure large in his speeches.

That the idea has caught on among his assistants was apparent the other day when the governor's secretary, Col. William Maass, erected a huge sign in the sombre waiting room in the executive office on which are now emblazoned the virtues of Wisconsin's cheese and lakes. Big as life, it attracts the attention of all who enter the governor's sanctum, and they are many.

Personal Health Talks

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.
Noted Physician and Author

NOT ALL IS FLU

Profound prostration out of all proportion to with intensity of the disease is the characteristic of which the diagnosis of influenza is made, in time of epidemic. But a sense of great prostration or weakness such as accompanies mild cases in many cases scarcely warrants the inference that the illness is influenza.

The nature and specific cause of the pandemic disease that took millions of lives at the time of the World War was never determined. The disease was most certainly infectious or contagious, and not due to some mysterious external or casual poison or other inscrutable influence. Many years before the war the medical profession had accepted Pfeiffer's bacillus as the cause of influenza, but wartime experience cast doubt on that and led to the present view that influenza is a virus infection, too small to be visible under the standard microscope of the bacteriologist. A disease having features characteristic of influenza is produced in ferrets, mice and other animals by inoculating them with material from cases of human influenza. The blood serum from animals that have recovered from such influenza has some antitoxic value, protecting other animals against developing the disease. So does the blood serum of patients who have recovered from influenza confer a degree of immunity, not complete immunity, but enough to be a help when administered to other patients coming down with influenza.

Serum taken from patients during the acute illness, however, has no value against the disease. These observations convince many physicians that influenza, as we see it today, is a virus disease and it seems fairly well accepted now that the disease spreads almost entirely as a spray infection — the virus being carried from person to person mainly in the droplets, visible, or invisibly fine, of secretion of moisture given off from nose, throat or mouth when the patient sneezes, coughs or talks.

Among fairly polite but sadly ununiform people that is to say people who are fairly well educated except about personal health and hygiene—ordinary conversation, in my opinion, is the usual medium of infection. People just will not recognize that a moisture spray with a range of from two to five feet is emitted from the mouth of every individual during quiet conversation, even though you do not feel the impact of the droplets.

During the wartime pandemic a thousand prisoners in a German internment camp were kept almost free from influenza although the disease raged fiercely all around them—each prisoner received 4 grains of quinine daily throughout the period of the epidemic.

Even two grains of quinine a day may give considerable protection against influenza if this treatment is begun early and continued as long as the disease is epidemic.

Many excellent physicians advocate six or eight grains of quinine daily for adults three or four grains for children, as a prophylactic against influenza when the disease is epidemic. Others believe two grains a day for an adult, one grain a day for a child, sufficient.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
Rhubarb
Please tell me the food value of rhubarb and what effect it has on the system. (Mrs. M. C.)

Answer—Food value insignificant—100 calories in a pound. But it is appetizing, wholesome, a good source of vitamin A, C, B-complex, slightly laxative. Pay no attention to notions about exalic acid in it—of course, there is exalic acid in rhubarb, also in spinach, plums, figs, chocolate, cocoa, potatoes, beans, bread, crust, etc.—what of it?

Hot Water
Does drinking hot water before and at breakfast harm a person? (G.V.H.)

Answer—Not if you like it or the effect. Elderly or feeble folk often like to take a glassful or two of hot water before breakfast or with breakfast. Ordinarily, cool or cold water is a better stimulant for digestion.

Menopause
Within two weeks after I began taking the calcium and vitamin D you suggested my hot flashes practically ceased, and for about three months I have been almost free from them, besides feeling much more like my old self. I am so grateful. (Mrs. C.K.)

Answer—Happy to send particulars to any sufferer who asks for monograph on Menopause. Enclose stamped envelope bearing your address.

Timid Soul
For a man who knows better you show great timidity about telling the truth about food and vitamins. Why not tell people that vitamins grow in the food, and they'll get all the vitamins they need if they eat food uncooked and unrefined, just as it grows. (E. S. A.)

Answer—Few people could get enough Vitamin D from any food especially few infants or children who need it most. Otherwise your suggestion is good. I make a table stab at it in the articles I have printed in this column on eating plain wheat, and in the monograph on "Plain Wheat." I am glad to send on request, to any one who provides a three-cent-stamped envelope bearing his address.

Dr. Brady will answer all signed letters pertaining to health. Writer's names are never printed. Only inquiries of general interest will be answered by mail if written in ink and a stamped, self-addressed envelope is enclosed. Americanism Will Be Theme of Scout Meeting April 20

Annual Event to be Held In Kaukauna High School Gymnasium

Americanism will be the theme of the annual meeting of the scouts and of the decorations at the twelfth annual meeting of the Kaukauna high school gymnasium Thursday evening, April 20.

The meeting, which will start with a dinner at 6:45, will be limited to 500 people. Scout officials from the council and the region, and men and women from this area who are actively interested in the scouting program will attend the event.

One of the highlights of the evening will be the introduction of a new council executive, to succeed Walter Dixon. The present executive, who has been stationed in Appleton since 1934, has accepted a position in Kansas.

Joseph McCarthy and Edward F. Renick of Kaukauna are co-chairmen for the meeting at which Dixon will give his final report.

Those attending the meeting participate in the election of officers and hear reports from the various committee heads of the council.

Troop committee chairmen or members of district committees will have tickets for the event, the valley council office reported today.

Would Close All Taverns at 2:30

Brown County Assemblyman Says Present Law Is Ineffective

Madison—A statewide 2:30 closing hour for taverns will help to "clean-up" the liquor dispensing industry, Harold A. Lytle, Brown county Democratic assemblyman said in support of his amendment to a 1 o'clock closing hour bill now before the state legislature.

Lytle pointed out that the present law forbids the dispensing of liquor after 1 o'clock in the morning, but he said that the regulation thus afforded is ineffective because the law does not require that the taverns must close at that hour.

A strict closing hour, he said, doubted that a 1 o'clock closing bill would pass, because of the opposition of Milwaukee and resort county legislators.

His measure, he said, is intended to "close them up tight, and to give local officers a chance to enforce the law." He explained also that it would not conflict with those municipalities which have local tavern closing ordinances because most of them have earlier closing provisions.

"There is a popular impression now that taverns close at one. That is not true; they are merely forbidden to sell liquor after that hour; they can sell beer and remain open after that hour."

Lytle's amendment has the support of the Brown county tavernkeepers' organization, he said.

European Armies Will March On Full Stomachs if War Comes

Chicago—If European armies march to battle this year they can travel on full stomachs.

Soldon has the world's largest supply of wheat, the principal international food commodity, and elaborate distributing machinery is ready to direct its flow into army cantonnments, barring blockades that thwart international trade in time of war.

From half a dozen important grain producing regions in both hemispheres, wheat was available to European importing nations at virtually the lowest prices in years. Government subsidizing world distribution in an effort to maintain prices for producers at home.

The availability of surplus wheat—an important factor in mapping military strategy in the war councils of Europe—explained in part the strange, lackadaisical behavior of world wheat markets in the face of recurring war scares, grain traders said today.

Under normal circumstances, the threat of war would be expected to increase the demand for wheat. Recent European crises, however, have failed to upset the grain markets. Europe continues to buy on a hand-to-mouth basis. Wheat reserves of stable proportions were known to exist in many countries.

Traders said the war scare fuse has fizzled out so many times recently it apparently will take actual cannon fire between the big powers to give the grain trade a genuine war market.

The wheat pit still reflects the nervous tension of Europe, however. War talk becomes the outstanding market factor, behind which other trade circumstances fade into comparative insignificance. The current crisis brought a rise of about two cents over a two-day period of trading, but this subsequently was lost.

The 1938-39 world wheat crop was estimated at 4,535,000,000 bushels, an increase of 800,000,000 over the previous season, and world carry-over next July was expected to be around 1,250,000,000 bushels, or 655,000,000 larger than a year ago.

Domestic Woman Has Advantage Over One Engaged in Business

BY DOROTHY DIX

Dear Miss Dix—Why do women moan and complain about the hardships and difficulties of domesticity, which is, after all the career they choose for themselves? Why can't each housewife feel that she has the most important job in the universe because she makes the comfort, happiness and well-being of those dearest and nearest to her? Why can't she feel that she is far better off than the business or professional woman because she works in her own home, with her own things, where she is the boss, the head executive, the hub of the wheel around which her world turns? What greater satisfaction can a woman have than in knowing she keeps her husband well-nourished, healthy, comfortable and happy; that she is helping him to make his fortune and that he turns to home as a place of peace and rest? Why can't a woman express her sense of beauty in the adornment of her home? And isn't every perfectly served meal an artistic triumph of which she may be proud? What greater joy can life offer than children? And what more thrill can a mother find than in watching her little ones develop? I am thankful that I chose the happy vocation of homemaker and I wouldn't trade jobs with any one.

Answer:

Your letter is like a draught of sweet water after too many cups of wormwood and gall. For so many other women are continually weeping on my shoulder and telling me how dull and monotonous housework is and how fed up they are with it. How they are tied down by their children and how they wish they had chosen any other occupation on earth than domesticity.

They are eaten up with envy of every woman who has what they call a "career." They view all the smartly clad girls they see trooping downtown of a morning to work with green eyes. There's life for you! they think. There's gaiety and adventure. There's freedom and excitement. They don't have to walk around the daily treadmill of getting breakfast and hurrying husbands off to school and the children off to work. Fixing dull tasks that have to be done over and over and over again to keep a house running and a family fed and comfortable.

No one will deny that domestic life is hard. That it is routine. But so is all the other work in the world by which we earn our daily bread. The saleswoman, the typist, the teacher, even the glamorous movie star all do the same work the same way until it becomes a chore instead of an adventure. Every woman who works outside of her home has to put up with a boss who takes her good work for granted and raises ructions over her mistakes, who is grouchy and surly at times, just as the domestic woman has to put up with these faults in her husband.

Taking it by and large, the domestic woman has the advantage over the business woman in that she has a job from which she cannot be fired unless for good and sufficient reason, and which she is not liable to lose when she grows old and fat. If she does, she can collect alimony.

She has an equity in her husband's estate, whereas a woman employee has none in her boss'. While the wife gets no pay envelope on Saturday nights and feels that she works for her clothes and board, the average working woman fares no better. For she has nothing left after paying for her living.

Furthermore, the wife does not have to punch the timeclock on the dot, as the working woman does. Nor is she so hard-driven, for she can take a little time out of her day to gossip over the telephone or snatch a little nap. The business woman could not dream of so doing.

When all is said, there are no easy snags in life for most of us. Whether our work is hard and dull or a thrilling adventure depends upon how we look upon it. We get out of it what we put in it. I know of nothing sadder than that so many women get no joy, no kick out of the work they do for their families. They are doing the most important work on earth and that which should bring them the richest rewards, and they get out of it nothing but boredom and vain regrets and repining. Filly, isn't it?

Dear Dorothy Dix—I am a man 50 years of age, with a wife who is 28. We have two children. She has put a question up to me which I do not know how to answer. She says:

CASE RECORDS OF A PSYCHOLOGIST

By Dr. George W. Crane
Psychologist, Northwestern University

Millions will gamble their lives on the unscientific predictions of a gypsy fortune teller, but will profess disbelief regarding a life after death, despite the various logical arguments to support the latter. Use your brain and win an honorable grade on your report card before Death conducts your commencement exercises.

CASE M-182: Marvin J., aged 28 is a young professional man.

"For a year I have been ideally happy with the sweetest and most charming wife any man could ever hope for," he began.

"But during the last six weeks death has stricken two of my friends and one of my dear relatives. Up until now I have always led a happy life, and have been spared most of the sorrows which beset so many people.

"Now I am growing panicky about death. I am afraid of the future."

Is There a Heaven?

"By their fruits ye shall know them" is an excellent scientific precept. Our brief space will not permit a lengthy proof of a hereafter.

But we live in a cosmos that is more exact than our clocks. In fact, we set our clocks by it. It has innumerable solar systems, many of which are far larger than our own, and have possibly thousands of other inhabitable planets. Maybe we shall "graduate" to one of them after death.

Such a vast but precisely conducted universe cannot be a freakish work of chance. Human logic will not admit such a thing, for we are not permitted to deduce beyond our human experience, and human experience always has shown a brain behind an invention, regardless of how delicate or complex the latter may be.

By such human logic there must be a mind behind the universe. By such deduction man proved the earth was round before Columbus tried the real experiment, and we proved the microscope before a microscope was ever developed by hand.

Then, look what Christianity stands for. Most of our colleges were founded by it, as well as our hospitals, Red Cross, Salvation Army, Y.M.C.A. and Y.W.C.A. C.Y.O. and peace societies. It has championed nearly every constructive cause during the last 19 centuries. It promotes a rule of love instead of hate, which is the most unique psychological contribution in the history of this planet.

But when you are promoted to death, don't be content with a "D" grade! Try to rate a "B" or even an "A." This means throw your energies behind the constructive things in life instead of whiskey flasks and racing dope sheels!

live perception of cheapness has already become weakened. In fact, I think if proper pride is not soon given a little more backbone, the self respect of the oncoming generation will have the spinelessness of jellyfish. I willingly agree, of course, that many factors—principally those of depleted incomes—have contributed to the necessity for relaxing some of the rules of yesterday. In fact, there is scarcely a rule so hard-set that no adjustment can be made when common sense justifies it. As you have said, when a girl is invited to a fraternity party she should pay her own traveling expenses just as she should when she is invited to spend the weekend at the house of any of her friends. If she can't pay her way she should decline the invitation and stay at home. But just as when a girl going to stay with another girl, is sometimes sent a railroad (or boat) ticket by her hostess, it is in certain special cases proper that she accept a ticket from her host. For example, John Welleff, naturally wants Mary Poor who is his really "best" girl, to come to the party. If in addition to being his best girl, she has known her most of her life, her mother might be willing to send a round trip ticket. But in the case of a girl who is just an ordinary friend—still more a fairly new one, she would be putting herself in a cheapened position if she accepted.

My Neighbor Says—

Small seeds may be sown on a brick and will soon germinate. Place a common brick in a pan containing an inch or so of water. Spread the top with a two-inch layer of sifted soil and plant the seeds. Just the right amount of moisture will be absorbed from the damp brick.

The color your radiators are painted has a lot to do with the amount of radiant heat you derive from them. Color engineers say a fine coil radiator finished in walnut brown yields only as much radiant heat as a three coil radiator painted white or with one of the light aluminum finishes. All dark colors and cold colors such as greens and blues should be avoided in painting radiators. The warm colors or neutral shades including oyster white, pale greys, dull, warm orange and yellow are best.

AGAIN, A QUESTION OF PROPRIETY

Dear Mrs. Post: I have a cousin fifteen years older than I (I'm 18) who drives to the big city on business every so often and he has offered to let me drive in with him any time I please, to see a matinee or to go shopping while he is taking care of his business. The big city is about 100 miles away. Would it be proper to go with this cousin?

Answer: If you go and come back the same day, there certainly could be no criticism unless something in your own manner is questionable. But to go and spend the night in the big city wouldn't do at all unless you can stay with friends of yours. This, however, you surely know, without my telling you!

Bashful Boy Can be Cured by Giving Him Certain Jobs to Do

BY ANGELO PATRI

"Look, ma the teacher in Sunday School gave me these ten tickets and told me to sell them."

"That's a good idea. All the other boys get them too?"

"We all got them. I don't know what to do with them. I can't sell tickets."

"O, yes, you can. It's easy. The other boys will get ahead of you if you don't start right out."

"I don't know where to go."

"Ask anybody in the neighborhood. They know the church and they know the fair is coming. Most people will buy tickets."

"I can't ask them to buy tickets. They will say No and throw me out."

"Nonsense. Whoever heard of anybody's throwing a nice boy out because he offered them a ticket for the church fair?"

"You sell them, ma. They'll buy them from you."

"That wouldn't help you any. You'd be more bashful next time. You try yourself. Pick out a good block or two. Where do you think the best chances would be?"

"O, I don't know. I don't want to sell things anyway."

"I'd be ashamed of you if you didn't sell the very last of those ten tickets. Tell you what, Jim will go along with you. But he is not to do the selling. You're to do that. You take the two blocks square right around; this block first. Call at every house. Just smile and hold out your tickets. That is all. People can read. Go get Jim. He's in the back. Don't wait to think about it. Start right away and finish quickly."

Brother Jim stopped work and went in to see mother about the selling scheme and she said a few words in his ear, words that made him smile and nod at her. The two started out and rang the bell next door, sold two tickets, went to the next house, got a refusal, polite and kindly, but sure. Sold three at the next house, had to go a whole block before they sold the next one. But the ten were sold before they had done one side of the district mother had suggested.

"I sold them all, ma. Here's the money. I could sell ten more, I bet."

"Now that's what I call doing something. Go ahead. Imagine how pleased your teacher and class will be, and what the minister will say when she tells him."

Mr. Patri will give personal attention to inquiries from parents and school teachers on the care and development of children. Write him in care of this paper, enclosing a three-cent stamped, addressed envelope for reply.

Beauty and You

by PATRICIA LINDSAY

You have heard it before from me, and from other beauty editors: Your hair must be healthy if you want your new Spring permanent to be lovely, and to add to your beauty! A permanent given on dry or neglected hair is a despair as long as it lasts! Better wiggle along without a curl than to have a kinky mass of unlovely hair!

Begin Now

If you want to get a new permanent for Spring begin today to care for your hair as you should. Recondition it through good scalp massages, the use of a specific ointment, tonic and shampoo. Correct the dandruff condition before you even think of making an appointment with your hairdresser for the wave!

Much of the reconditioning can be done at home, but if you are in the position to afford from six to ten good hot oil treatments, accompanied with scientific scalp massages and cleanings, by all means invest in them. Such an investment usually gives you hair beauty for about six months.

If your scalp is oily, that too should be corrected. For hair unusually oily simply does not take a lasting wave. If you wish to correct the condition at home, send a self-addressed, stamped (3-cent) envelope for my leaflet "Care of the Oily Scalp" which suggests the most simple of ways. "Reconditioning Dry or Neglected Hair," is another leaflet available.

The Home Gardener

By Edwin H. Perkins

The season for planting dormant rose bushes is approaching an end. In several weeks from now the nurseries will withdraw the guarantee which usually accompanies plants sent out before April 15. There is still time in which to acquire and plant dormant stock. Dormant or bare-root roses should be gotten in the ground with as little delay as possible after they are removed from storage cellars. There is no trick in their handling, just follow a few instructions.

Holes in which the plants are set should be large enough so the roots can spread naturally. Keep the roots moist at all times before planting. Set the roots in the hole with the bud or growing eye an inch or two below the level of the soil line. Work fine soil among the open roots, firming it down with a blunt instrument like a pick, shovel handle or the sole of a shoe, and make the mass of returned soil as compact as possible. Fill the depression thus made with water. As soon as the water has drained away heap loose soil around the plant to retard evaporation. New begin pruning the survival of plants during the

Player Must Count Losing Tricks, Too

BY ELY CULBERTSON

When in contract is three no trump it is not enough for declarer to count his winners (which is an excellent idea). He must also count how many tricks he must concede in order to establish those winners. There is little profit in getting all set to cash nine tricks if the setting process involves giving the opponents five tricks first. South, in today's hand, found that out!

The bidding:
South West North East
1 heart Pass 1 spade Pass
2 hearts Pass 2 spades Pass
2 no trump Pass 3 no trump Pass
Pass Pass

The bidding was a shade optimistic, but certainly not to be criticized severely. The partners had a total of six-plus honor tricks, which usually will produce a game in no trump or in a major suit. Their lack of a fit in hearts, however, made the going very difficult.

West opened a low club. Declarer held up the ace once, but had to take the continuation. Then, on the theory that it was hopeless to attempt establishing any of the heart suit with only a singleton in dummy, declarer decided to go out for dummy's spades, apparently hoping to take four spades, one club, and four diamonds. He played the ace and another spade. East's king captured the jack and a club return, overtaken by West, gave the defenders two more tricks. Now, with the ace and king of diamonds in sight in dummy, West shrewdly decided that the best place to look for a setting trick was in the declarer's heart suit. West knew that the spades were going to break and strongly suspected that the declarer had a four card diamond suit head-jack and the queen, which also would break. The heart ace in East's hand settled matters and the contract was down one.

Declarer was correct in his assumption that the heart suit could not be established with only a singleton in dummy, but he should have counted that it would be fatal to surrender a spade trick voluntarily. With very good breaks throughout the hand it would not be necessary to establish the entire heart suit. Two heart tricks would suffice. Thus, after winning with the club ace, declarer should lead a diamond to dummy and return a heart. East would duck and the king would hold. Then declarer should knock out the ace by leading the queen. East would win and return a club. West would cash his long club and then probably return a diamond. Dummy's remaining diamond honor would win and now the spade finesse would be taken. As it happens it would succeed and declarer would find himself with two spade tricks, two hearts, four diamonds, and one club.

Admittedly this plan would have been favored by splendid breaks, including the drop of the diamond jack and the existence of a five-card club suit, and the successful finesse of the spade king, but since it was the only legitimate means of making nine tricks it should have been followed.

Mr. Culbertson will discuss this hand in tomorrow's column.

Be sure to wear the freshest, most charming fashion of the season... The Basque Picture Dress! And select Style No. 4081 if you want an easy time with your pattern! It's THIS new, that it is one of Spring's latest creations, and it's THAT becoming, and simple to make—that you'll surely want to stitch up more than one version! The be-ruffed yoke increases the flattery of the neckline. Ruffling is winsome too on the sleeves—and when it edges the flared skirt, it is sure to attract an unusual amount of admiration. If you like, you may put a wider "dust" ruffle under the lovely bias-cut skirt, and it will look like a petticoat that's meant to show!

Pattern 4081 is available in misses' and women's sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 22, 24, 26, 28, 30 and 32. Size 16 takes 31 yards 39 inch fabric and 41 yards ruffling.

THE CHARACTERS

Peter Mallone: Adventurous correspondent for the London News.
Petronella: His loyal sister.
James: Peter's fiancée.

Yesterday, Peter and James announced engagement, but a few minutes later, Peter was seen to go to another lover in a troubled country.

Chapter 35

The Gipsy's Prophecy

No sooner had Peter gone to Spain, than the full storm broke, the revolt started. Rebel ships from the North African colony landed their foreign legionnaires at Algiers, and seized the province of Huclva. Soon, the rebels held control of Spanish Morocco, the Canaries, the Balearic Islands, most of southwest Spain, and Navarre, the large area north of Madrid.

In Madrid itself, Petrel read, there were many with insurgent sympathies, so that for loads of Militiamen, bristling with arms, controlled the streets. Private, commandeered cars, spilling Militiamen from steps and wings, dashed up and down Calle Acala, searched houses suspected of harboring Fascists, and fired at those appearing in their windows, if the search had proved unsuccessful. Orders were broadcast, dismissing officers of the army from Lieutenant upwards. Martin Rowden heard the rattle of first summer, as well as their blooming, depends on proper pruning at planting time. Cut back all branches to within six inches of the ground line and remove all weak growths. In ten days they will show signs of life and, after several weeks, fertilizing can begin unless they were planted in prepared beds, made last fall, which contained generous supplies of manure.

American Indian Lore

BY PHEBE JEWELL NICHOLS
(Mrs. A. F. Lookaround)

There is a deep underlying similarity between Indian and Asiatic music, and each has made its specialization so that today this similarity is not pronounced, but the musician, like the anthropologist, looking for origins, is able to find characteristics common to both peoples. In this we may see a light that points back directly to the belief that the Indian has a Mongoloid ancestor. The music of Asia has its intricate elements and mystery hard for the Caucasian to comprehend and reproduce. Indian music has always been difficult of interpretation by white people, and as a religious expression its significance remains well nigh unrevealed. Its outward aspects of rhythm and melody have appeared simple to analyze, for the rhythms are like the body rhythms of breath and heart beat, and of wind and water; and the melody or tune may imitate bird notes, a breeze, a sigh, a cry, a laugh, or a rumble of thunder. Indian music's peculiar use of fractional intervals makes impossible its being written down with our system of notation. Only the human voice or a stringed instrument like the violin can even approach any successful interpretation of purely native Indian music. Some of our great musicians, Cadman, Farwell, Lieurance, and others have written exquisite compositions built on Indian tunes and have contrived harmony, which does not exist in Indian music, so that we have a body of what is termed Indian music available for all musicians today. It seems to me that, while much of this has moved far from the endemic rhythms, the true spirit of that native music has been preserved and brought to us through the understanding and devotion of the composers and our lives have been made richer thereby.

Singing was part of religious worship. The chief characteristic of this singing was, and is today, its high trilling falsetto, which is said the Indian used because it carried farther than any other tone. Accent and pitch were used, and a singular stress in the form of explosive enunciation. The Indian is an expert in making full vowel sounds and in elongating syllables where little enunciation effort is required. People have tried with little success to imitate Indian singing, this failure being due perhaps to the fact that as one authority holds that "only an Indian throat can produce such sounds."

Individualism in Music

The forms which Indians songs take have much of repetition, little adherence to metrical or stanzaic pattern, less rhyme than assonance, and a symmetry is produced by alternating thought rhythms. As in his other phases of culture, so in song making the Indian is an individualist. While religious ceremonies have their ritual songs which have been passed down through the ages by memory and are sung by those who have been assigned to sing them, songs are made by individuals to express their own emotions. These songs remain their own property and must not be sung by others. Here, perhaps, we have the earliest instance of copyright in America! When an Indian grew old and felt himself not far from death, he usually selected some young person to whom he gave over his possessions of songs, dance, story, and other lore. So it was that these individual songs came to live through the years. Incidental to this subject is the following: The writer was interested in the platform work of a young Indian and asked him if in his program he would not sing the lovely lullaby which he had told her his mother had sung to him. He replied that he would and then said that when he first wished to use this song he had traveled to his mother's distant home and asked her permission to use it. This information added much interest to the song as the young Indian sang it, "a song," he said, "As she carried me in a shawl on her back and walked through the woods in the twilight."

The drum accompanies most of the singing. If there is accent in this drumming, it must be trochaic because the first beat carries that accent. However, the imperiousness of the Indian drum is due to the almost superhuman regularity of the uninterrupted drum beats. The drummers did not fatigue easily, but when one did, another was always ready to take his place when it was important that there be no break in the rhythm. To this incessant beating may be attributed the curious semi-hypnotic power of the drum, for it induced exhilaration, exaltation, and excitement, varying with the theme of the song or the spirit of the occasion.

Surely, the tom tom sounding out its imperative call, and the great songs born of soul yearning and need, and the dances expressive of beauty and emotion, while the sacred pipe moved from lip to lip and the smoke of the votive tobacco wended prayerfully upward, were adequate vehicles for the Indian's religious feeling as he sought communion with his God in the worshipful way of his fathers.

Question: Why did many Winnebago Indians object to plowing the ground and farming?

Answer: The Winnebagos are Siouan and therefore primarily non-agricultural. They are in the same general group as the Plains Indians who never planted a garden or field but gathered for food everything edible that grew on the earth.

for me. He has a friend in the Telephone building, and I may find it easier to locate and receive calls with his influence. He says Spain will be an international battle ground, before this grim business is settled. I asked him if he had any message for you, old dear. I know you'll want to know his answer. He said, "My congratulations, that's all. But he talked about you. He said it seemed odd to find me alone. He feels as I do, that you've chosen to do the best thing you could. With such a job, he couldn't help making you a poor husband. And even though he loves you, he couldn't give it up. But he wants you to be happy."

"Even though he loves me," thought Petronella, and tried, but failed, to feel scornful of Tony's exaggeration.

Starling Headline

Thereafter, Peter's life was long and interesting, filled with calmly stated details of the revolution. The fact that no censor stood beside him, finger on switch, he did not tempt him to exaggerate. One or two scenes of brutality, which he had seen, he recorded. But the letter gave an impression of truth, which other screaming headlines, announcing widespread atrocity, had not. Martin Rowden thanked Peter, when he received three of the four sheets, and published most of it as an "uncensored letter from Spain." The news became worse. Despite Peter's private assurance that "most of the bombs they are dropping are duds, and do little damage," Petronella found it impossible not to be anxious. In the streets, a few yards, Peter was told to "Manos arriba," hands up, and had his papers examined.

James was very understanding of her wretchedness. This was the first real danger Peter had encountered, since she left him. He knew her superstitious fear that fate might, seizing this opportunity, separate them from one another permanently. But there was an additional reason for her anxiety which he did not understand. She had not told him Tony was in Madrid.

"I'm sorry. It's hell for you. But there is nothing you can do about it," he sympathized unhappily.

"No, nothing." He blamed the exaggeration of her fear on the Lorillos. "Can't you send them somewhere else? It is enough to set on your nerves having them in the house, always talking about Spain."

"No. They haven't anywhere to go."

One evening, during the second week in August, James went to the shop, where she had told him to call for her. He found that she had gone to the Post Office to telephone.

"No bad news," he asked Tamara quickly. She indicated the evening paper, and a staring headline.

"No—just that." He read: "Two British journalists reported killed in air over Madrid. Grave mistake by anti-aircraft."

"There are dozens of journalists in Madrid. But, of course, she is calling up Mr. Rowden for news."

"Poor Petrel." But Tamara shook her head, with the same nonchalance, and smiled at him.

"Poor Petrel." But Tamara shook her head, and lives more often in London. It will always be like this for you. Half her attention! Half her thoughts, half her love. You must love her very much to be content with it. I should think you would be very fed up with Peter."

Trembling

He looked at her. He flushed. Even as he gave his loyal answer, he knew that he was blustering and lying.

"Tamara, you're uncivilized."

"Of course! Because I speak the truth. I do not pretend."

"I'm anxious for Peter's safety, too."

"Why should you be? He enjoys danger. One cannot spend life wearing oneself out about such people. In his heart, he agreed with her. She was right about Petrel, too. It was not enough for any normal man. Petrel was only half her, he told himself. Her graceful mind and body moved in Ballfield, dutifully, sweetly. Tamara cut in, completing his thought.

"I think her spirit is a long way away, James. The gipsy told her that, didn't she? She told me things, too. I was pretending only, when I joked about the desk."

Her eyes met his in challenge. He hardly dared to ask his question. But he must know. "What did she say?"

Tamara looked startled and obstinate.

"No, I won't tell you."

"You must." He caught at her, roughly.

"No, no." Before he realized the unsuitability of this scene, Tamara

PRODUCTION STAFF WORKS ON COLLEGE PLAY SET

Paint cans, tools and scaffolding make the stage at Lawrence Memorial chapel a dangerous place to walk these days as members of the production staff prepare the set for "Kind Lady," which will be presented there Monday and Tuesday nights by the Lawrence college theater. Here is a bird's-eye view of four feminine members of the staff painting scenery. The play, which is being presented under the direction of F. Theodore Cloak, is adapted from a story by Hugh Walpole. Edward Chodorov wrote the dramatization. (Post-Crescent Photo)

Dress Rehearsal for Senior Production Held Wednesday

THE busiest spot in Appleton High school these days is the stage, where last minute preparations are going on for the performance of "Romances by Emma," the senior class play to be presented at 8:15 Friday evening. The 3-act comedy is a dramatic adaptation by DeWitt Bodden of Jane Austen's novel, "Emma."

Costumes arrived Wednesday from the Dave Miller Costume company, Milwaukee, and were fitted at the rehearsal in the evening. Since the setting for the drama is in the year 1814, the Regency period in England, the girls in the cast will wear the high waisted flowing skirts characteristic of the time, while the boys will don the brightly colored jackets.

Tonight at dress rehearsal the final touches will be put on the set, the living room of the well-to-do Woodhouse family in the little town of Highbury. Through the generosity of families in Appleton, Miss Ruth McKennan, director has gathered furniture and properties in keeping with the Georgian style of architecture. Chairs, sofas, drapes and even tapers will be authentic. Those who know their antiques will see furnishings representative of the Chippendale, Sheraton, Adam and Hepplewhite stylings.

The mood of the comedy is slightly ly ironical as it presents a penetrating view into the manners of the provincial society of Highbury. Like Jane Austen's "Pride and Prejudice," "Emma" is famous for its sly revelation of character, the loving minuteness of detail, the quiet laughter at the narrow social circle of the English upper middle class.

Reserved seats for the comedy may be purchased at Bellings Drug store. Buses will run out to the high school until 8:30 o'clock and will be waiting outside to accommodate the audience after the play is over.

Wisconsin's Health

BY DR. C. A. HARPER
State Health Officer

Children today are getting, and following, better advice on care of the teeth than any generation before them.

Results—a nation with better teeth, better general health, more reason to smile, and with smiles that are easier to look at.

For more than two years the state board of health has employed a dentist, Dr. Francis A. Bull, to devote full time to the encouragement of better dental health in Wisconsin.

Since entering on this work, Dr. Bull has written two leaflets on his subject, one for expectant mothers and mothers of preschool children, the other for young school children.

Through the convenient medium of the public school system these leaflets are being distributed as widely as possible. They are written in plain language, and what they tell you do doesn't require money so much as conscientious care.

A diet that contains plenty of milk, fresh fruits and vegetables, plus extra vitamin D, and restricted in carbohydrates, does something that prevents tooth decay in children and in adults as well.

The right sort of diet should be accompanied by the right sort of mouth hygiene, of course. Daily brushing of the teeth is essential, and within the reach of all when it is realized that a mixture of equal parts of table salt and baking soda provides a reasonably effective toothpowder.

Also essential in maintaining sound teeth is a periodic checkup by your dentist. In a number of Wisconsin cities and counties dental hygienists are employed to make such inspections among school children, a procedure that has gained remarkable results.

Baked sliced bananas, spread with honey and a few chopped nuts, make a delicious dessert. Serve cold or hot. Lemon or orange sauce is a recommended addition.

Murphy Striving For Merit System In Federal Courts

New Attorney General Would Eliminate Patronage Appointments

BY W. B. RAGSDALE

Washington—(P)—Attorney General Murphy is working on changes in the set-up of the federal courts that will hit patronage-minded members of congress where it hurts.

He wants to introduce the merit system into the courts, taking up wards of a thousand nice plums out of the patronage basket at the outset.

This is only one phase of Murphy's endeavor to bring a new spirit into the federal court system. In the upper bracket, appointments—judgeships and district attorneys—the emphasis is being placed on selection of capable younger men imbued with an idea of public service.

Cite Examples

Justice department officials say such men are being obtained and cited recent appointments in Pennsylvania, Ohio, Illinois and New York as examples.

Coupled with this will be an effort to weed out incompetent and unworthy judges and judicial practices. The handling of recoveries is being given special study by justice department men.

All the district attorneys have been summoned here for a meeting in April at which Murphy will expound his ideas of how he expects them to do their job.

Issue Emphasized

A complete digest is being compiled of every pending case, how long it has been hanging fire, and why it has not been disposed of. Murphy will have this analysis be-

Edward J. Byrne Reelected Head Of Mutual Firm

Secretary Reports Gains In Assets, Reserves And Surplus

Edward J. Byrne, Appleton attorney, was reelected president of the Home Mutual Casualty company, Zuelke building, at the annual policyholders' meeting yesterday at the Appleton State bank building.

Gordon A. Bubolz, Appleton, was reelected secretary-treasurer, and Julius Bubolz, Appleton, and Martin G. Hougan, Stoughton, were reelected first and second vice-presidents respectively. Franklin C. Jesse, Gordon A. Bubolz and Henry H. Hermesen, Little Chute, again were named to serve on the board of directors. Other directors are: Wilbert Spanagel, Julius Bubolz, Edward J. Byrne, Alta M. Pahl, J. I. Davis, Appleton; and Martin G. Hougan, Stoughton.

The secretary's annual report of the financial condition of the company showed a gain of 65.07 per cent in assets, 58.6 per cent increase in reserves and a gain of 181.3 per cent in surplus. A total of $152,487.15 in premiums were written during last year. Since its organization in 1935, a total of $108,629.62 has been paid to policy holders for losses, the secretary reported.

J. I. Davis, underwriter of the company, addressed the group on the prevention of highway accidents. He said about 30 per cent of accidents are caused by persons between the ages of 18 and 25 and most of the accidents could be prevented if more care and courtesy were shown on the highways.

Before the meeting, a breakfast was held at the Conway hotel for special agents, Hougan, Hermesen, and Al Kaiser, Stratford. The group discussed plans for the year.

Actor Portrays Grant For Forty-Second Time

Hollywood—(P)—Joseph Crehan, veteran character actor of the stage and screen, put on whiskers and stuck a cigar in his mouth today and for the forty-second time stepped into the role of Ulysses S. Grant.

Crehan, who has played General Grant 31 times and President Grant on 11 occasions, finds but one drawback—cigars sicken him.

Policeman Committed To State Institution

Elkhorn, Wis.—(P)—Policeman George McCormick, 55, was committed to Central State hospital for the criminal insane after pleading guilty before County Judge Roscoe Luce yesterday to a charge of arson.

The court was informed that McCormick, after setting fire to his own home, fired a shot which nearly struck Police Chief Harry Ward, and then attempted to commit suicide.

Judge Luce, upon receiving the plea, directed that McCormick be examined by two doctors, and issued the commitment order after hearing their report.

He directed the court to inform him to fire specific criticisms at the district attorneys.

In addition to this digest, the attorney general is inspecting the operations of quite a few of their offices. He has said he expected to get out and try a few cases himself.

"Do you mean you are going in to the lower courts and try a case, general?" he was asked.

"There are no lower and upper courts," he replied. "The issue is what counts."

Hitler 'Believes' Reich Seizures Approaching End

triumphantly ashore from a German battleship in this regained Baltic seaport.

"I believe that now, in the main, we have arrived at an end of this unique process of reparation," Hitler declared.

Previously he had explained that Germany, while wanting to harm no one, had been compelled to repair "the damage" that had been done to Germany.

Hitler arrived in Memel harbor aboard the 10,000-ton pocket battleship Deutschland just a day after Lithuania had consented to return the 1,099-square mile Baltic territory which was retaken from Germany after the World war.

But his assertion that the period of reparation might be at an end was not unconditional. His phrase, "in the main," left a loophole for possible further "reparations."

There are two major ones still possibly on the fuhrer's list—Germany's former colonial empire and the Polish corridor—besides such small ones as Eupen and Malmédy, 400 square miles ceded to Belgium, and North Schleswig, 1,542 square miles ceded to Denmark.

A few minutes after the fuhrer landed he told Memellanders from a theater balcony:

"In the name of the entire German people I greet you and accept you into the great German reich....

Frontier Land

"Even if our course does not please another world, for this new Germany some eighty millions stand sponsor."

"You are a frontier land and will best appreciate having a great nation behind you.

"A new community has sprung from need and adversity.

"That no other power shall ever subjugate us—for this we shall look out.

"So I greet you today as old volksgenossen—members of the German community—and as the youngest citizens.

"And just as in this minute throughout the whole German reich, so too we here want to give expression to our faith and our confidence in the words, 'Sieg Heil!'"

The fuhrer finished speaking at 2:39 p. m. (7:39 a. m., C. S. T.). Enthusiastic singing of the reich's national anthems followed.

While warning the world that no nation on earth could tear the uni-

Hitler's reception by Memel, the northernmost German city he ever has visited, was on a par with enthusiastic greetings he received in other centers when they were brought "home into the reich."

It was a day of holiday and merry-making for a population ordinarily given only to hard work.

Shows Armed Might

Hitler gave his latest subjects an impressive demonstration of what Germany's might is by arriving with a large part of the German fleet, by having units of the first army corps march into the city and by letting warplanes roar overhead.

He also had his trusted head of the German police, Heinrich Himmler, on hand early. Dr. Ernst Neumann, Nazi leader for Memel, already had set up formations of the Nazi party and SA and SS units.

Hitler shook hands with generals and admirals commanding his forces.

"Our thanks to the leader of all Germans! Sieg Heil!"

The first German troops entered the city of Memel shortly after 8 o'clock a. m. C. S. T. today.

Memellanders gave the troops an unreserved welcome.

It was a day of holiday and merry-making for a population ordinarily given only to hard work.

Shows Armed Might

Hitler gave his latest subjects an impressive demonstration of what Germany's might is by arriving with a large part of the German fleet, by having units of the first army corps march into the city and by letting warplanes roar overhead.

He also had his trusted head of the German police, Heinrich Himmler, on hand early. Dr. Ernst Neumann, Nazi leader for Memel, already had set up formations of the Nazi party and SA and SS units.

Hitler shook hands with generals and admirals commanding his forces.

As the crowds cried ecstatically, erment which yielded at the end of the World war) had to submit to the disgrace of having German soil sowed from German soil. This disgrace now has been wiped away. We never lost our belief in the German people. Our faith grew when a fuhrer stood up among the German people. Our faith was rewarded. We again are free. We belong again to the great Germany.

"Our thanks to the leader of all Germans! Sieg Heil!"

The first German troops entered the city of Memel shortly after 8 o'clock a. m. C. S. T. today.

Memellanders gave the troops an unreserved welcome.

Remember this—the color of an egg's shell has nothing to do with its quality or food value. If dark colored ones are cheaper, buy them; they're just as good as those with light colored shells.

NOW!—Thousands of Washing Machine Owners Are Changing To New High-Test Oxydol

The Amazing New Improved Soap for Whiter, Brighter Washes

"NO WONDER EVERYONE'S RAVING ABOUT THIS NEW MIRACLE SOAP!"

Now comes a new-type soap to usher in a new day of whiter washes, clearer and brighter clothes. A soap so utterly amazing that thousands of women have changed to it almost overnight!

Called new High-Test OXYDOL, it contains a remarkable new ingredient that combines whiter washing and SAFETY, in a way that scientists have been working on for years. Due to this new ingredient, High-Test Oxydol does these astonishing things in independent laboratory tests against less efficient soaps—

(1) Gets white clothes up to 25% whiter than even well-known, advertised soaps lacking this new ingredient.

(2) Gives up to twice the suds—suds stand up 2 to 3 times longer. Yet is so SAFE that even cotton prints, given the equivalent of mere hours of full year's normal washing, showed no perceptible sign of fading—stayed sparkling bright.

Washing machine owners are thrilled with new High-Test Oxydol, for it soaks out dirt while the washer is running—gives double-action wash.

In hot washing—it soaks dirt loose in as little as 10 minutes. No scrubbing, no boiling.

High-Test OXYDOL is economical, too. Each cup goes up to 25% farther than equal amounts of less efficient soaps. Try it. Procter & Gamble.

Oneida to Vote On Question of Building School

District No. 2 Will Hold Special Meeting Friday Night

Residents of the Oneida school district No. 2 will vote on the question of building a new state graded school at a special meeting at 8 o'clock Friday evening. The meeting has been called for tomorrow so that if a new building is decided upon, construction work may be started as soon as the school term ends.

The present district school is a 1-room building. With an enrollment of almost 100 students, some classes are being held in another building.

The school board, facing the building problem for some time, already has tentative plans for a new structure, but definite steps have been held up pending action of the voters.

Henry J. Van Straten, county superintendent of schools, and R. S. Ihlenfeldt, of the state department of public instruction will attend the special meeting.

Members of the district school board a short time ago conferred with state school officials on the problem.

Announce New Order To Cut Freight Rates On Coal in Wisconsin

Madison—(AP)—The public service commission today announced a new order further reducing certain freight rates on coal hauled between Wisconsin points.

It replaces an order to last September, which the commission reconsidered, and lowers the rates on hauls up to 100 miles about 10 per cent. Total reductions to shippers were estimated at $250,000 annually. The commission said the new order would entail additional reductions but it could not estimate the amount.

For distances over 100 miles the rates will be the same as those previously determined. With a few exceptions at Chippewa Falls, Eau Claire and inland paper mill points they will be lowered on fine bituminous coal to reflect transportation conditions and meet industrial needs, the commission said.

Milwaukee and Marinette docks were given a basis of rates as at Neenah-Menasha, key point in the Fox river valley, which is 10 cents per ton above the Green Bay rates on fine coal and 15 cents on lump coal.

Safety Council Buys Projector

Machine Will be Used to Show Special Films In County

The Outagamie County Safety Council, meeting at the courthouse last night, purchased a motion picture projector for the showing of safety films. Cost of the machine was $238.

"Handle Bar Hazards," Appleton's bicycle safety film, was presented with the projector. A committee now will decide who will operate the machine and what pictures will be shown.

The council also voted to join the National Safety Council. The membership will make the county council eligible for safety bulletins and other material on safety distributed by the national organization.

Reports were heard on the proposed safety poster program. Under the tentative program safety posters will be distributed in the county at regular intervals. They will be placed on bulletin boards in conspicuous places at filling stations, garages and public buildings.

Thoughts of house cleaning and garden planning took form today as residents of Appleton and vicinity basked in a bright sun which chased the few remaining snowbanks and made winter clothing seem exceptionally heavy and unnecessary.

The committee elected to rename the building Hamar Union, and to remodel at an estimated cost of $400.

The proposal calls for a student social center at which students could dance, get light lunches, have fountain service, gather for meetings, read, play cards and have informal discussions.

The plans are to remodel and refurnish the rooms and to occupy both floors of the house instead of only the lower floor as in the past.

The administration of Hamar Union would be in the hands of a committee appointed by and responsible to the executive committee. Included on this committee would be a social chairman who would plan activities in the new center.

Students propose to remove a partition between three large front floor rooms to convert the area into one large room which could be used for lunches and dancing. A partition between two second-floor rooms also would be removed.

Furnishings would include large and small tables for eating in the main first-floor room, kitchen, facilities including a refrigerator, grill and dishes, an ice cream dispensary on the first floor. Furniture now in the home would be used in the second-floor rooms.

A machine to play recordings would be installed and newspapers, magazines and books would be available in the reading rooms. A card room also is planned.

Food would be prepared by a woman who would be placed in charge of the house and who would manage the financial affairs. A small apartment would be furnished for her in the rear of the second floor.

Would Defer Boost in Social Security Taxes

Washington—(AP)—Walter E. Fuller of Philadelphia, president of the Curtiss Publishing company, urged today that the increase in social security taxes scheduled for next year be postponed.

Appearing before the house ways and means committee in behalf of the National Association of Manufacturers, Fuller said actuarial studies made by his organization made it evident that even if payment of benefits was begun next Jan. 1, the present payroll tax of 1 per cent "would be more than sufficient to adequately finance the plan for the next 15 years."

Chicago—(AP)—Seventeen thousand bond holders who a decade ago clipped coupons from their insult utility investments will again be paid off but this time as creditors of a bankrupt insult holding company.

The payment of $2,146,560, about April 1, will be the initial one made to the bondholders of Insult utility, now known as Insult Utility Investment, Inc., which was the holding company the late Samuel Insult established in an effort to consolidate control over his vast utility kingdom.

Defeat of Sawyer Papers Assures Policemen of Second Place

Neenah — Neenah Police clinched second place in the Neenah Basketball league last night when they defeated Sawyer Papers, 40 to 27, at Roosevelt school gymnasium. Business Men walloped the Kuehl's Grocery five, 32 to 24, to break a fourth place deadlock in the other league game.

The Police staged a second half scoring spurt to trounce the Sawyer Papers. It was a nip and tuck battle during the first half, the count being tied 8-all at the end of the first quarter and 12-all at halftime. During the third quarter, Police counted 14 points while holding the Sawyers to six, and during the last period, Police scored another 14 points while limiting the Papers to nine.

Declares Early Treatment Will Curb Cancer Mortality

Indianapolis—Dr. Frank E. Adair of New York, cancer clinic chairman for the American College of Surgeons, believes early recognition and prompt treatment of breast cancer can save the lives of 25,000 more women in this country annually.

"There is little reason why we cannot do this," he said in outlining his views before the college's mid-west conference here last night.

A study of patients in one hospital, he explained, showed "the most important single factor in our failure" was that 55 per cent of the cases did not get treatment early.

Women should make periodic self-examinations, he emphasized.

"If women are taught that it is their job, instead of the doctor's," he said, "we would get our breast cases much earlier than at present. As only about 4 per cent of the American people go to the doctor for an annual physical examination, it is of paramount importance that the public as a whole be educated on the subject of cancer."

Most authorities agree, he said, that cancer, superceded only by heart disease in the national death rate, is increasing "about 2 per cent annually."

"Cancer," he added, "takes annually in the United States approximately 150,000 lives... less than one-third of those living with the disease at any one time. In the United States, practically a half million persons are living today with cancer."

Of all types of cancer, Dr. Adair said, "breast cancer is the one which is the most rapidly increasing in New York city. Reports of cancer of the stomach would indicate it is decreasing. During 1938, there were 19,000 deaths from cancer in New York state, or slightly more than that due to all forms of tuberculosis and pneumonia combined."

Leading surgeons and hospital executives from Illinois, Michigan, Ohio, Wisconsin, Iowa and Indiana are attending the conference, which ends tomorrow.

France Is Taking Lead in Efforts To Win Alliances

urances that she was ready with Britain mutually to protect Holland, Belgium and Switzerland in western Europe in the event of aggression against those small countries.

There long has been a tacit "self-protection" understanding between the two big powers to this effect.

With Chancellor Hitler in Memel, returned to German rule yesterday by Lithuania, some quarters expected Britain to call an international big power conference shortly, either in London or Paris, as originally proposed by Russia after the German obliteration of Czechoslovakia.

BID TO ITALY

Paris—French government today concentrated on hurried efforts to win Italy from Germany either by a show of force or diplomatic negotiations.

Diplomatic observers said that immediate calling of an "anti-aggression" conference of France, Britain, Soviet Russia, Poland and the Balkan states would show that the two western powers meant business. Such a plan was under discussion in London.

They said the conference might convince Italy that it would be dangerous to continue to tie itself to Germany's expansionist policy.

These observers said France might make a general offer to discuss any problem separating France and Italy which would give premier Mussolini a face-saving "out."

Italy yesterday through the fascist grand council reaffirmed her faith in the Rome-Berlin axis.

Speed Is Aim

There was an appearance of speed in the British-French negotiations now underway in London concerning the conference that seemed geared to the necessity of making contact with Italy before Mussolini's speech next Sunday—the twentieth anniversary of fascism—in which it was felt it would outline Italy's future policy.

Should the French-British maneuvers fail, however, and should Mussolini make formal claims against France, the machinery was being prepared for an immediate answer.

Premier Daladier let it be known that he was planning a radio speech to the nation early next week after Mussolini's address. Government circles said it would deal with the international situation.

French observers were cautious in consideration of reports that a French writer and friend of Mussolini, Hubert Lagardelle, had brought word that the duke would negotiate if France provided the opening. He came to Paris from Italy yesterday.

The government even authorized a denial that "any agent official or unofficial of the French embassy in Italy coming from Rome was charged with transmission of any Italian proposition or suggestion."

HUNGARIAN MOVE

Budapest—Hungarian troops moved into Slovakia today at several points along the Slovakia-Carpatho-Ukraine frontier, said reliable reports from that section, and diplomatic quarters heard Hungary was occupying Slovakia on Germany's invitation.

The reports supported belief among foreign diplomats that Adolf Hitler, protector of Slovakia since last week's absorption of Czechoslovakia, had adopted a policy of encouraging Hungarian expansion.

Possible New Lineup

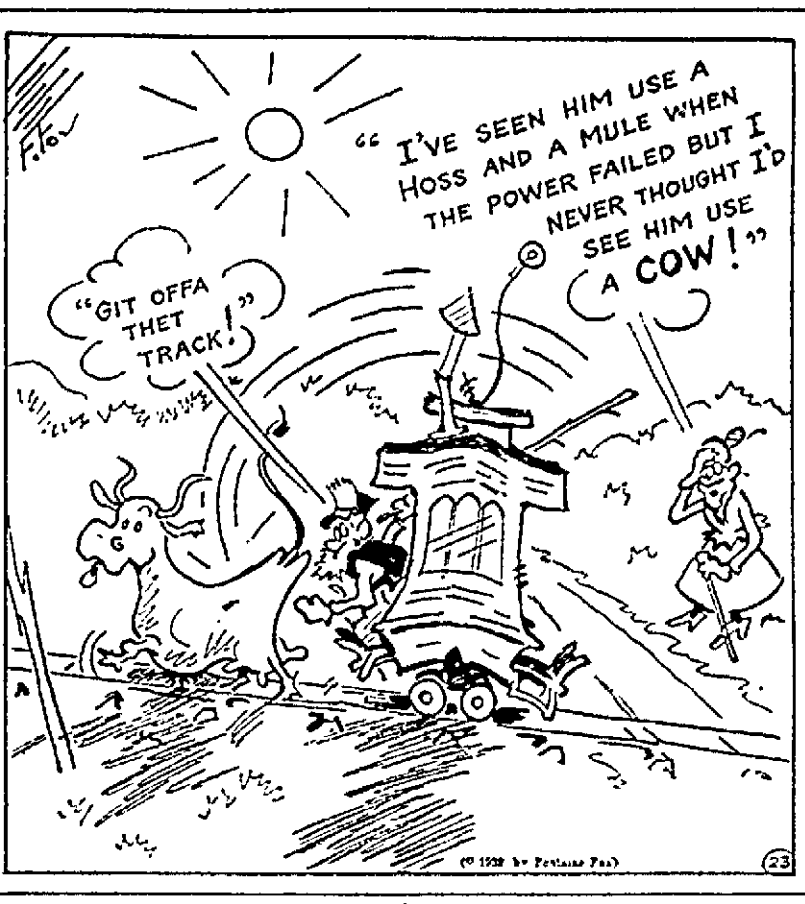

Under the plan sketched by the diplomatic Slovakia would be given a sort of autonomy under the Budapest government such as already has been promised to Carpatho-Ukraine.

Dr. Vojtech Tuko, one of the leaders of the new Slovakia, recently visited Budapest and Berlin. It was believed possible that he had discussed annexation by Hungary.

Should the plan for creation of a new, strong Hungary under German auspices be carried through successfully, diplomats said an entirely new lineup in Europe might result.

They pointed out Hungary would

The Toonerville Trolley That Meets All Trains

to build up a powerful ally in central Europe.

Hungarian troops had been in Carpatho-Ukraine since their occupation last week of that easternmost section of Czechoslovakia.

Some diplomats and deputies said they understood Hungarian troops already had crossed the frontier and were advancing up the Vag valley.

In government quarters confirmation of these reports could not be obtained.

Withhold News

But some diplomats saw partial confirmation in the fact that last night the government issued strict orders to Hungarian newspapers and news agencies to publish nothing concerning military operations.

In some diplomatic circles there was a belief that Reichsfuehrer Hitler, under whose protection Slovakia placed herself last week, had adopted a policy favoring reconstruction of the realm of St. Stephen—the pre-war kingdom of Hungary, under whose protection Slovakia placed herself last week.

These sources said the first step in such a direction was Hungary's recovery of Carpatho-Ukraine, easternmost section of vanished Czechoslovakia which Hungary occupied when Hitler absorbed the rest of that republic.

A second step would be for Hungary to take over Slovakia, which the Hapsburg kings of Hungary (who also were emperors of Austria) administered before the World war break up of the Hapsburg realm.

(Hitler has yet to announce what form of government he proposes to give Slovakia, an area of 14,900 square miles with 2,450,000 population.)

Eden Demands Speed in Defense Preparations

London—Anthony Eden today reiterated his demand for national unity to speed defense preparations against increasing aggression in Europe, saying that "as conditions are today, every hour counts."

Eden spoke to the Association of American Correspondents in London.

The former foreign secretary, who resigned 13 months ago in disagreement with Prime Minister Chamberlain's foreign policy, clearly gave his backing to the government's new policy of seeking to form an international bloc to resist expanding Germany.

First Lady Presented With 'Youth Problem'

San Diego, Calif.—A group of 1,000 San Diego state college students, interested in Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt's scheduled address on youth problems at a public auditorium, have asked her to help them solve one of their current difficulties.

In a petition requesting her to repeat her talk at the college, the students pointed out that "one of the problems of youth" is to get fifty-five cents—the admission fee to the auditorium.

Beloit Man Receives New Diplomatic Post

New York—Robert C. Strong of Beloit, Wis., who expected to become United States vice-consul at Prague, was appointed last night to the same post at Hamburg, Germany, as the result of swift-moving events in Europe.

With his new assignment from the state department, he embarked on the United States liner Washington with several other diplomats.

Says Federal Workers Are Afraid to Testify

Washington—Senator Ellender (D-La.) said today government employees "are scared to death" to testify before his committee investigating alleged discriminations in the employment of federal workers.

He said the hearings would start Monday on reports that "beauty, age, friendship or influence" have determined who is to be hired, fired or promoted.

Mrs. Roosevelt Is Very Plain About Her D. A. R. Status

Los Angeles—(AP)—"I have resigned from the D. A. R.," was Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt's answer today to a statement in Boston yesterday by Mrs. Frank L. Nason, registrar general of the Daughters of the American Revolution, that the first lady's withdrawal had not been received.

Lecturing here before an audience of 2,500 last night, Mrs. Roosevelt made her reply to the question: "Do you intend to resign from the D. A. R.?"

The president's wife was reported several weeks ago to have left the organization in protest against its refusal to permit Marian Anderson, Negro singer, to appear in Washington's Constitution hall.

Modern Song Twisted Into Safety Warning

Cleveland—(AP)—The influence of swing music has invaded the field of safety education in the police department.

Erected in the center of a street at public square was this sign, addressed to motorists and pedestrians: "Jeepers creepers, use your peepers."

RAY CRANE splattered a 750 series during industrial league matches last night for the highest total registered on the Arcade alleys this season. Crane crashed games of 246, 256 and 248 for his big count. After smacking five straight strikes in his last game, he fitted the ball into the pocket in the tenth frame only to see the No. 10 pin remain upright. He picked off a spare and wound up with a strike.

High individual game during matches last night was jolted by Wilbur Strutz who turned in a 258. Al's Bar monopolized team honors with a 1,066 game and a 2,891 triple.

Post-Crescent and Power Company keglers were scheduled to clash but the match was postponed. The two teams have been feuding all year and the general managers

TITLE MATCH
With but one game separating them, Wadhams Oil and Fox River Paper Co. keglers will clash in a championship battle during final matches at Arcade alleys Wednesday night. Wadhams Oil bounded into the league lead last night when they won three games from Machine Company while Fox River was losing two to Plank Dandy Rollers.

The two plants have been drawn into the battle lines. William Schubert, Power boss, was unable to make it last night and the Post-Crescent squad graciously granted a temporary reprieve. Both Schubert and H. L. Davis, Sr., Post-Crescent executive, have done little kegling in recent years and are said to be demanding the installation of side rails to keep the balls from going into the gutters.

Powers Beaten Twice
The rivalry dates back to a 3-game victory scored by the newspaper boys during a league match early in the season and consequent challenges and counter-challenges. A special match was rolled with a "feed" and the cost of bowling at stake. The Post-Crescent team again came out on top to completely mystify the Power squad. The better losers still think they're the better bet and will attempt to prove it in the forthcoming match.

Wadhams Oil forced into the league lead last night with a 2-1 game triumph over the Machine Company. Freddie Yelg led the attack with a 245 game and 595 series while Joe Reynolds turned in a 217 game and B. Kraschold a 200. Topping the machines were Walley Ecker with a 543 triple and W. Rowan with a 204 single.

Crane sparked Woolen Mills to a 2-game win over Pond Sports. Lee Eberhart showed 202 and Herb 206 for the winners. Bobbie K. Smith won a 602 series on games of 246 and 233. Joe Shields pumped 222 and Schmidt showed 214 for the losers.

Loss Leads Lead
Fox River was edged out of first place when Plank's Dandy Rollers scored an upset 3-game triumph. Ken Strutz paced the winners with a 213 game and 571 series. Everett Weimer maintained the losers with a 204 game and 552 series and Schreiber added a 201 single.

Atlas Printers grand slammed. Schlafer Supply Company as the losers came through with the worst series of the season, a 2,226 count. Jerry Zapp headed the victors with a 246 game and 922 series and Kitchner showed 200. Dave McGee "starred" for the losers with a 443 series. Incidentally, the Schlafer quint carried one of the heaviest handicaps in the circuit.

Capitulating on his high team totals, Al's Bar made it three straight over Montgomery Ward. Orville Perrine paced the winners with a 234 game and 575 series. Schmidt tallied games of 206 and 209 and McCullum counted 201. High for the losers was Joe Herman with 551.

Two games were credited to Tuffie Press in a match with Atlas Embossers. Chet Merkle showed 542 for the winners while Lyle

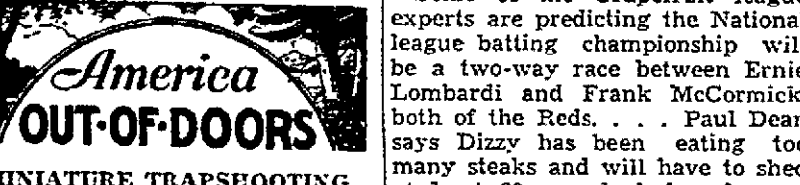

'THE ARM WILL BE O. K.' DIZ TELLS JOE E. BROWN
A couple of fellows noted for their big mouths got together on the Chicago Cub bench in Los Angeles as the Cubs played an exhibition game with the Pittsburgh Pirates. The condition of Dix's arm still remains a mystery and he has yet to make an appearance on the mound this season, but O' Dix assured Brown that he would be O.K.

MINIATURE TRAPSHOOTING IS Rising Fast in Popularity

By Jimmy Robinson
MINIATURE trapshooting, a new clay target sport invented by Fred Routledge, the well known Monroe, Mich., trapshooting star, is sweeping the entire country by storm. Routledge gave shotgun and rifle fans a chance to show their skill at his game at the recent International Outdoor show at Chicago, and they took to it like ducks to water. In fact, they shot at nearly 150,000 of the midsize clay, which appear about half the size of a regular trapshooting target, during the week. Routledge used six traps. The targets are small, about 1/2 inches in diameter, of the same general shape as the regulation target. The composition is enough different to allow it to be shattered by a small charge of shot. A 22 caliber shot shell is used. (This shell is standard on the market now and can be bought for $7.50 per thousand.) It contains 105 to 120 pellets of No. 12 shot. The target is thrown 75 feet, and a trap can be set either indoors or outdoors.

Special 22 Is Needed
A specially bored gun is used. The regular 22 caliber rifle is not suitable for this work because it acts in the same manner that a cylinder-bored 12 gauge does at regulation targets. These guns (Routledge Special Boring) put about 80 per cent of the pattern into six inches at 35 feet, whereas a 22 caliber rifle would spread at least three times as far.

The target distance is increased slightly for skeet shooting for the course is laid out 70 feet between the trapshooter. Incidentally, this game at skeet is most amusing, and a fairly good shot can break 18 out of 25.

The outfit, trap and gun, costs $41. Fred used Savage single barrel guns at Chicago which cost him $18. The Remington repeaters sell at $30.50. Shells, as stated before, are $7.50 per thousand, and targets sell for $5 per thousand. This means that each shot will cost 11c.

Of course there were pick-ups galore at Chicago, at least 50 per cent, which means that shots cost only one cent each plus the trap boys. This is an item of course to a commercial club but means little to a group of sportsmen who wish to have a trap for pleasure.

We feel that this miniature clay target game will go a long way. It

Little Chute — Three upsets featured the combined Lox Mill pin league. The Glanis, last week's leaders, were toppled from their throne by losing two games to the rampaging Redskins. The Lions gave the Eagles a shellacking in three games to give them undisputed possession of the top rung. Last week the teams were tied for second place in standings. In the third upset, the lowly Rams made a clean sweep of their match with the Bears.

In the Cardinals-Packer game, Theodore Helf blasted a 645 triple on games of 229, 214 and 202, with Erv Feldmann showing two games of 200 and K. Pinkerton a 206 for the losers. But this wasn't enough as every legler on the Skins quintet hit well over 500 with G. De Koch posts with 576. C. Schuler had a 555.

In the Cardinal-Packer tussle, Dunger paced the Cards with a nice 629 series on games of 219, 206 and 206. Nubs Nole was the only Beef-turter to top the 500 mark for the losers. He had a 515 series and a 191 game.

Lemke led the Lions in their charge on the Eagles with a 615 triple, and high game of 231 followed by R. Jansen with a 217 and a 201. Red Wildenberg paced the losers, with a 555 total and a 190 game.

Having Karl Piepenberg on its roster seems to have pepped up their last place Rams as they have hit their stride the last few weeks with Piepenberg pacing them. He blasted top series with a 620 total and had high games of 225 and 214. B. Plank showed a 212 and a 201, Joe Stein a 219 and O. Refke a 215. The Bruins had a poor night with Hennig shooting over the 500 mark with a 555 total and high games of 199.

High games showed Lemke with 231, Helf with 229 and Piepenberg with 225. High series honors went to Helf with 645, Dunger showed 629 and Piepenberg had 620. Lions copped high team game with 997 and team series with 2757.

Straits of Magellan Offer Traveler Spectacular Sights

After having passed through the straits of Magellan, Mr. and Mrs. K. E. Thieckens of Neenah, touring around South America, are on their way back to the United States. The following letter by Mrs. Thieckens describes this part of the trip.

BY JEAN WILEY THICKENS

Porto Montt, Argentina—This morning the Bremen slid into the harbor of Porto Montt. We could not tie up to the pier but went ashore by tender from about two miles out at sea. Porto Montt is an almost-defunct lumbering town of about twenty thousand population.

We boarded the train there, for a 25 minute run up to Puerto Varas, where we detained and all went up to the hotel, an ultra modern and most attractive hostelry run by a German company. It is situated on the shores of one of the famous Chilean lakes and at the foot of a most beautiful volcano. The lake is wild and heavily wooded and might be one of the Finger lakes of northern New York. This is Lake Yanquique, the first of a chain which extends from sea level to Lake Titicaca, sixteen thousand feet up in the Andes and is the highest lake in the world.

Lake Yanquique is cool and picturesque and the food at the hotel was superb but unless one was an octogenarian, and just wanted to sit and "chill" all day, one would die of boredom, for even the most beautiful scenery begins to pall after a time.

Defending Champion Bows at Catholic Meet

Chicago — 47 — St. Xavier, defending champion from Louisville, was sidetracked from the title running today as the 16th annual national Catholic prep basketball tournament swung into a full day of first round fireworks.

Twenty-two teams, representing 13 states, were down for action. St. Xavier fell by the way in last night's opening game before Mt. Carmel, Chicago Catholic league champions, 47-43.

In last night's other games, St. Joseph of Collegeville, Ind., overwhelmed St. Stephens (Wyo.) Mission by a 45 to 15 score. St. George of Evanston, Ill., defeated Corpus Christi of Galesburg, Ill., 38 to 20.

is becoming
More Popular Every Day

This new container is strictly odorless and tasteless. After it is formed by machine, it is submerged in a solution of pure, highly refined paraffine, at a constant temperature of 180 degrees. This coats the entire container and therefore milk does not contact the container itself, but the tasteless paraffine coated walls.

Housewives use this same paraffine in sealing their jam and jellies.

The cream content is the maximum allowed by the state. It is exactly the same high percentage cream as in the glass bottles. In glass bottles of course the cream is contained in the narrow neck, while in our new container it is in a wider area.

Be sure to try this new container, you will like it

MALE CROCHETER Charleson, S. C. — 47 —

Let's go back 36 or 38 years," suggested 48-year-old R. L. Richter.

"Were the parlors of those days equipped with radios? Were the movies so popular? Was the automobile so common? Did children have as much freedom as they have now? Of course not!"

"One night I just told my mother that if I had to sit around doing nothing I had rather be doing the same thing she was doing, crocheting. She dared me and I took her up, and I have been crocheting ever since."

Straits, jagged mountains towered on either side of us, covered at their summits by snow and near the water line with moss and queer stunted bushes, for no trees can grow there. At intervals glistening glaciers which were actually blue in color, (due to the reflection of the sun on the ice) swept down the mountains and into the sea. The water was almost black and seals sported beside the ship. An occasional albatross swept by with wings extended to a span of twelve or fifteen feet. The water in the straits is so deep that no bottom has ever been found and ships cannot anchor there. They say there are not only 10 days out of each year that terrific storms and winds do not sweep and whistle through this narrow passage. In the olden days sailing ships were entirely at the mercy of the winds and many rough sailors have lost their lives in this terrible spot.

Several tiny fishing villages can be seen along the shores and wrecks of ancient sailing ships extend above the water at various points. We were fortunate to have one of the 10 fine days which are granted the natives by the weather man each year. The sun came out and illuminated the glaciers and the summits of the towering, saw-toothed mountains. It was a most spectacular and unforgettable sight. We passed a Chilean freighter loaded with supplies for the starving earthquake sufferers in Concepcion and Chillan, and the following day we learned that it had been blown on to the rocks by adverse winds and completely wrecked though all on board were saved. Navigating such a huge ship as the Bremen through such a narrow and rock-infested channel was a difficult procedure but no adverse circumstance occurred to mar the thrilling experience, though the speed of the ship was reduced to about one half its normal 28 knots per hour. The following morning when we woke, were were again in the open sea and headed north up the coast of Argentina.

Loyal Order of Moose Entertains at Party

Clintonville — Members of the Loyal Order of Moose entertained their wives Tuesday evening at the Knights of Columbus hall. Eight tables of schafskopf were played, after which a lunch was served. High prizes at cards went to Joseph Bobb, Leonard Fischer, Mrs. Roy Downham and Mrs. Leonard Neely. A special prize was won by Mrs. Henry Korb.

A social hour followed the Re-look meeting Tuesday evening at the I. O. D. F. hall. A "true or false" contest provided entertainment, prizes being awarded to Mrs. Frank Kohl and Mrs. A. W. Parfitt. Refreshments were served by Mrs. George Olsen and Miss Pauline Winter.

The Book Review club was entertained Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. Harley J. Powell on N. Main street. Mrs. Fred Holmes reported on the book "A Country Kitchen," by Della Lutz, in which the author relates the memories of her childhood on a farm in Michigan. The WORLD of STAMPS

Perhaps the principal of Monaco doesn't figure much as a nation in international politics, but its new stamps commemorating the Curies are much in demand. It was 40 years ago (November, 1898) that Polish Marie Curie and her husband Pierre Curie, discovered radium, the miraculous metal which aids in the cure of cancer.

Much of the appeal in the new stamps to collectors is because Monaco, as a nation, is a freak. This nation, which covers an expanse of 385 acres or eight square miles, lies along the Mediterranean in the resort belt of Southern France. It's not only the smallest nation in the world, but has the densest population (3,100 per square mile) and is one of the wealthiest. In fact, it's so wealthy that it has no taxes.

The cost of government is more than covered by revenue from its casinos, at which natives are not allowed to gamble.

The new stamps—two in number—are issued to help in the fight against cancer. One stamp, bearing portraits of the Curies, is priced at 60 centimes with a surtax of 25 centimes and is green in color. The second one, in blue, shows buildings that face palm trees on the right. This one carries 175 centimes value plus 50c surtax.

Three In One
Switzerland is one united country, but it has three official languages—which make for complications in the issuing of new stamps. Its latest set is issued on the occasion of the National Swiss Exposition to be held in Zurich beginning May 6. Three values are issued, each in three different languages, to make a total of nine.

The nation was originally formed from bits of the imperial kingdoms, Germany, Italy and Burgundy, for common defense against a common foe—the Hapsburgs. Despite vast racial, religious and political differences, the nation has hung together remarkably well.

In 1874 the revised constitution provided that the nation have three official languages, German, French and Italian. All three are now used in parliamentary debate, in the public notices and on the stamps. In actual usage, German is spoken by about 70 per cent of the people, French by 22 and Italian by about six. The remainder of the population speaks one of the two unofficial languages, Romansch or Ladin. The exposition which the set commemorates is held every 25 years to show the progress Switzerland has made in industry, agriculture and cultural development. The last exposition was held in Bern.

Values of the three issues are 10, 20 and 30 centimes. All nine stamps bear the white cross on an orange shield. The 10 centime stamp, in purple, bears pictures of 10 persons who represent Swiss vocations. The 20 value, in red, shows a family group. And the 30 value, pictured above, is in blue. Perforation for all is 11½.

Cub Training Course Slated Tuesday Night

A cub training course for parents will be held at Washington school next Tuesday night, the valley council boy scout office reported today.

Four Menasha men, Ralph Success, Jess Redmond, David Lenz, and James Hawley, will be in charge of the meeting.

Parents of the St. Joseph's parish interested in the formation of a cub pack will meet the same evening at St. Joseph's hall. Fred Heimritz is chairman for the meeting.

DARTS AID IN STUDIES

Kimberly Legion Planning Banquet

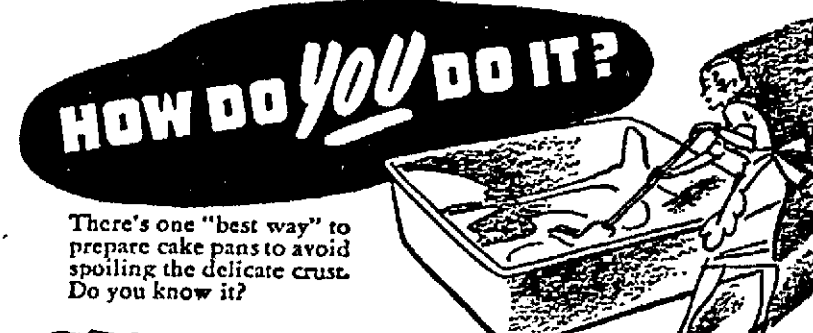

Basketball Teams and Boy Scout First Aid Team to be Honored

Kimberly—Plans were made to send a high school junior student to St. John's Military academy at Delaford, in June for eight days, at an American Legion meeting at the clubhouse Tuesday evening. The legion also will contact officials of the Booster club, to request them to send a student to the military school during the same period.

The Rev. L. C. Smith, pastor of the Presbyterian church, suggested that a banquet be held soon in honor of the Kimberly AA eagles, former amateur state champs, Coach Hamann and high school eagles, the Rev. Father Huetpas and his entire squad of Holy Name Midgets and the Boy Scout's first aid team, which won the sectional meet at Fond du Lac this week. The legion appointed the Rev. Mr. Smith, J. R. Gerrits, John Vanden Boogaard and John Clark to make plans for the first available date.

IV-BUTTER
No one knows how men first learned to make butter, but very likely the art was learned by accident. We may suppose that men were taking milk across the desert "churned" it on the way - the milk would be shaken a great deal while in a leather bag carried by a camel.

Modern churning machine

Old records tell us - one way Arab riders were in the custom of churning milk. They put it in bags, which were fastened by cords to the saddle, and dragged the bags along the ground. Butter of one kind or another was used more than 3,000 years ago. Probably it was not solid, for we are told it was "poured" from the container. In ancient times, butter seems to have been used more as a salve for wounds than as a food.

As time went on, better ways of churning were learned. One old-fashioned churn was a wooden container which looked something like a thin barrel. It had an up-right handle which was worked up and down. The container was partly filled with milk or cream, and the person working it had a long, hard task.

A better type of churn was made with a barrel which was set in a framework, and was turned around with a crank. This kind of churn, still used in some parts, works best when the barrel is turned "end-over-end."

Modern dairies have power-driven churns. Cream is placed in a container, and human muscle is not needed to turn it into butter. Some present-day churns are large enough to produce half a ton of butter.

It is possible to make butter from whole milk, but the usual way nowadays is to employ only cream. The fatty part of the milk makes the butter, and almost all the rest is in the cream. Separators make it easy for the dairyman to take the cream from the milk.

When it is churned, the cream is shaken or jarred, often with paddles. The shaking makes the bits of fat gather together, in that way producing small lumps of butter. Then the "buttermilk" is drained away, and the lumps of butter are worked together.

Tests with certain kinds of churns have shown that butter can be made in as little as three or four minutes. Such butter, however, is not of the best grade. Experts say it is better to take a longer time to make butter. Butter can be made from sour cream or from sweet cream. Dairymen say they "ripen" cream when they let it turn sour to prepare for butter-making.

Maureen O'Sullivan, who was born on the Emerald Isle at Boyle, is Ireland's gift to Hollywood. Miss O'Sullivan is now engaged in the making of a new Tarzan picture with Johnny Weissmuller.

By Jimmie Fidler

Hollywood — In his palatial office, I. I. Silliman, czar of Miraculous Pictures, Inc., is in conference with five assistant producers, two advertising men, three nephews, five cousins and his favorite office boy. The subject under discussion is Miraculous Pictures' forthcoming super-super-colossal, "Little Miss Muffet." "A terrific story—especially if we can get Karloff to play that spider!" enthuses the great I. I. But a worried expression settles on his face and he adds, "But how about the title? 'Little Miss Muffet'—boys, a title like that hasn't got any punch. It doesn't say anything when it's up in lights. Where's its SEX-APPEAL? That's what I want to know, boys—where's the SEX-APPEAL in a title like THAT?"

CHORUS: "You're right, I. I.—dead right!"

I. I.: "Look—I got a great idea—a GREAT idea. It's sensational! Let's call it 'Passion on a Tuffet.' How's THAT one?"

CHORUS: "Marvelous! Colossal! TERRIFIC!"

A second office boy enters with a telegram from Miraculous Pictures' exchange manager. I. I. reads it aloud: "British-made picture titled quote Pygmalion unquote by some guy named Shaw cleaning up in all theaters stop breaking all box-office records and doubling our grosses on quote Passion in a Col-

That run-around M-G-M gave Allan Jones didn't affect his appetite—he still eats a big steak sandwich at every four p. m. In-a-word description of Mae West: sin-ilaring. Now that Carole Lombard has gone dignified, the most con-tagious laugh in all these parts be-ongs to Lucille Ball. Since the Nazis latest land-grab, I suppose it's permissible to refer to Francis Lederer as a cancelled Czech. Can-didate for the most-charming-man-ners award: Leo Carrillo.

Marjorie Weaver tells me that she's getting just a bit du-bious about the joys of a movie career. Some weeks ago, it seems, she was being consid-ered for a certain role and the considerers, after appraising her curves, solemnly instructed her to reduce. Never too plump, if judged by most stand-ards, Marjorie obeyed—but suffered agonies in the process. The pounds slipped away, one by one, until last week. Then she was summoned to the front office and awarded an entire-ly different role—that of Mary Todd in "Young Mr. Lincoln."

"And by the way," said the Mighty One, as she started to leave his office, "I think you're just a bit thin for that part. See if you can't put on about fifteen pounds in the next two weeks!"

FIDDLINGS:
Oh, the number of dreams that have fled!
And the number of hopes that are dead!
Oh, the sad undertones,
And the groans and the moans
Of the males, since Lamarr went and wed!

Where to Seat New Aldermen Bothering Appleton Council

The city council is facing a pro-blem, not a very serious one, of where and how to seat the 18 al-dermen who will be named in the April 4 election.

And then again, their 12, not 18, files for the papers and reports given aldermen each day. The prob-lem won't be a lasting one, for the officials expect to move into the new city hall sometime this sum-mer.

Nothing definite has been done to date to arrange for 18 aldermen be-

Experiment With Hot Bed Flowers At Wilson School

An experiment to get an early start on the flower season is being tried out this year at Wilson Ju-nior high school under the direc-tion of Carl Enger, instructor, and John Wagner, janitor.

Flower seeds have been planted in boxes, literally hundreds of them and of many different species. The boxes were built in Enger's man-ual arts classes and have the choice spots in the sun in second floor windows. Others are growing in the basement room.

Guy J. Barlow, principal, said to-day that members of the Junior Isaac Walton league will build two additional flower beds at the rear of the school this spring and the boys will aid in transplanting the young flowers. The project may be turned over to the Walton league boys next spring, he said.

cause no one seems to know if and when new equipment will be pur-chased for the new city hall. There now are 12 desks and 12 files for the present aldermen. Maybe six new members will have to use card tables. A couple of days ago some-one suggested a park bench.
